FOE BUILDS NEW HINDENBURG LINE

1,450,000 in France or on Way

TO HASTEN TROOPS TO FRONT

General March Says Conditions Warrant Increased Shipments

Washington, Aug. 17.—American troops in France and on the way now total 1,450,000, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, informed members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee today. Increased shipments of troops may now be expected, said General March, due to the vastly improved conditions both on this side of the Atlantic and in France.

General March told of the remarkable health conditions obtaining in the overseas forces referring to the recent report of Surgeon-General Gorgas, announcing that the hospital death rate was only two for every thousand men.

Members of the committee, following the conference with the chief of staff, stressed the conviction that the War Department's program for 2,300,000 men in France by June of next year would be realized beyond any question of doubt, and some were of the opinion that it might be exceeded.

General March touched upon the Russian situation, but the information that he gave was given in the strictest confidence, and members of the committee refused to reveal it.

NEWPORT BOYCOTT ON GERMAN MUSIC

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—A boycott on music by German composers has been started by Mrs. William Jay of New York, who is summering here. Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, daughter of the late Julia Ward Howe and secretary of the Art Association of Newport, assured Mrs. Jay that she would see that no German music was played at the Sunday afternoon concerts given for men in the service.

The end was expected, as he suffered from heart disease, and for the past few days it was known that the Senator was in a critical condition. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ralph Gallinger, was with him. He was unconscious before he died.

Attending physicians gave the cause of death as hardening of the arteries, with cardiac hypertrophy and myocarditis as contributing causes.

The body was taken today to Concord.

CRISIS IN RUSSIAN CAPITAL

Social Revolutionaries Control Moscow; Soviets Remove National Bank

London, Aug. 17.—German military forces have seized Kronstandt, the Russian naval base, twenty miles out of Petrograd, according to advices reaching here today from Stockholm. It is also reported that Bolshevik troops have surrounded Kazan, a city of about 173,000 population on the left bank of the Volga, and are bombarding it. The town is held by the Czecho-Slovaks.

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 17.—Moscow is now in the power of the Social Revolutionaries (the anti-Bolsheviki), said a Stockholm dispatch to the Times today. The situation there is critical.

The Soviet government has removed the Russian national bank from Moscow.

German troops are daily expected to reach Petrograd, said the dispatch, and occupy part of the railway leading from the capital to the northern coast.

It was reported yesterday that the Bolsheviki at Moscow had fortified the Kremlin palace, expecting a siege.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT IN CRASH OF AUTOS

Sterling, Aug. 17.—Frank Scott, 27, of San Francisco, was killed, and Miss Helen Borden and Carl Wiegand were probably fatally injured early today when an automobile in which they were driving crashed into an auto truck on the road between Sterling and West Boylston. Miss Borden lives at No. 4 Allen street, Worcester.

Their car was driven by Archie Lacroix of Worcester, who hurried the passengers to Worcester City Hospital, without being aware of the seriousness of their injuries until arrival, when Scott was found to be dead. It is believed that he was killed instantly. He was head auditor of the Crompton & Knowles Works.

According to Lacroix, the truck was standing by the road, and loaded with lumber, which projected from the rear end. The tail light had been removed, and Lacroix did not see the truck in time to avoid crashing into it. In his haste to get medical attention for the injured, he failed to find out the name of the owner of the truck.

U.S. FLIERS DOWN 3 PLANES

Fourth Driven Out of Control in Battle on the Rheims-Vesle-Aisne Front

By HENRY G. WALES.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the Aisne-Vesle Front, Aug. 17 (10 p. m.)—Three German airplanes were shot down and another was driven down out of control by American airmen yesterday afternoon, over the Rheims-Vesle-Aisne front.

Lieutenants Buckley, Gravatt, Curtis and Mitchell were protecting American observation machines and were patrolling above the front when seven Fokkers and three Rumplers were encountered.

The fight which followed proved a decisive defeat for the Germans. Buckley, Curtis and Gravatt each shot down a machine. Another was driven down out of control by Curtis, but it is not officially confirmed that the Boche machine crashed to earth.

The German survivors flew away without molesting the Americans any further, while all the Americans returned safely to their base.

Eleventh German Airship Bagged by Brookline Flier

With the American Army in France, Aug. 17.—Lieutenant David E. Putnam of Brookline, Mass., brought down his eleventh enemy machine at the conclusion of a day of the greatest aerial activity.

Four Americans met four German Fokkers. Lieutenant Drew brought down one of them and Lieutenant Stiles another, the fall of which has not yet been officially confirmed.

We successfully bombed Conflans, scoring eighteen direct hits. All our machines returned, despite sharp pursuit by eleven enemy machines.

CONDITION OF SENATOR JAMES "UNCHANGED"

Baltimore, Aug. 17.—Only contradictory reports could be had early today as to the condition of United States Senator Ollie M. James, of Kentucky, who for more than two months has been a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital. Physicians at the institution insist that Senator James' condition is "unchanged" and that his condition is not serious. On the other hand, according to some who have seen the Kentucky statesman within the past few days, Senator James' condition is very grave.

SAYS GERMANS WILL TRY MONARCHY IN RUSSIA

London, Aug. 17.—Lord Robert Cecil expresses the belief that Germany will attempt to re-establish the monarchy in Russia if the Bolshevik falls.

ALLIES CLOSING IN ON ROYE, GREAT GERMAN BASE

Paris, Aug. 17.—The Germans are constructing a new "Hindenburg line" well behind their present defences in Picardy, according to information reaching here from the front today. Laborers and "pioneers" are being employed in large numbers on the new defences. It is believed the enemy is preparing to fall back from his prsent line all the way from Roye to Noyon within the next few days.

New gains announced today by the British and French war offices reveal that the allied forces have driven to within one mile of Roye on the northwest. The fall of this German base to the allies is expected at any time.

London, Aug. 17.—British forces have advanced in three sectors of the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts, the War Office announced today.

Further progress was made by the British north of the Roye road, north of the Ancre River and near Vieux Berquin.

Sharp patrol fighting occurred in the Vieux Berquin sector (Flanders front), where the British have been gaining steadily along the northern flank of the Lys salient.

The British and French are driving ahead in the direction of the German base at Roye in an encircling movement.

The text of the War Office report follows:

"The pressure of our troops north of the Roye road and north of the Ancre River has continued and progress has been made by us in both sectors.

"In the neighborhood of Vieux-Berquin our patrols had sharp fighting yesterday and further encounters took place during the night.

"Our troops have made further progress in this sector and in the neighborhood of Merris and have taken a few prisoners.

"The hostile artillery has shown considerable activity about Mount Rouge and the Scherpenberg sector and in the vicinity of Zillibeke Lake."

Paris, Aug. 17.—French forces that are encircling the German base at Roye from the south fought their way through Loges wood during the night, reaching the eastern edge, the War Office announced today.

Between the Matz and Oise rivers the Germans sought to stem the French advance and delivered two powerful counter attacks, but were hurled back, and the French lines were maintained intact.

West of Roye there was great artillery activity throughout the night.

The German counter attacks centred in the sector of Monolithe farm and Carnoy, where the French have been making steady gains.

The Germans attempted a raid northwest of Rheims, but it had no result.

The new French progress south of the Avre (in the Loges wood) further imperils the German hold on Roye, which is becoming more precarious daily.

(Loges wood is about five miles south of Roye. Further to the northwest the allies are only about a mile from the German base.)

The communique follows:

"West of Roye there was great artillery activity during the course of the night.

"South of the Avre the French continued their progress through Loges wood, reaching the eastern edge.

"Between the Matz and Oise rivers we repulsed two strong German attacks in the Monolithe farm-Carnoy sector, maintaining all our positions.

"Northwest of Rheims, a raid was attempted by the enemy in the sector of La Neuvellette, but was without any result."

London, Aug. 17.—In the official reports of the last four days, from the Flanders, Picardy and Vesle-Marne fronts, few changes have been recorded that would look imposing if traced on the map. And yet, these three days of slow, dogged shoving ahead by the French and British, with a half a mile gain here and a few hundred yards there, constituted the critical phase of the battle. It was the Germans' only chance to strike back in force; they didn't do it, and that in itself is a confession that the battle has been lost and that they are getting ready to take the consequences. These consequences are bound to show themselves presently.

Hans von Boehn is setting the stage for a large-scale retreat at a minimum cost to the retreaters, and the only remaining question is whether Foch is going to let him get away without paying an appropriate price.

But before the chances of a safe retreat are discussed, attention should be drawn to what is happening between Albert and Arras. There, the British, according to Haig's report, have sent patrols across the Ancre near Thiepval Wood, which is close to the same village of that name, three and a half miles northeast of Albert. Further north, British patrols advanced on the three-mile front between Beaucourt and Puisieux.

Only little further progress is required in this sector before the whole German centre, between Albert and Arras, must go back toward Bapaume, with the flanks retiring automatically. Albert seems destined to fall to the British before many more days are passed, and Arras would promptly be disentangled. Once they have gone back across the Ancre, the Germans cannot stop before they reach the foothold of the Bapaume-Combles-Peronne line.

EXPECT BIG RETREAT.

Only entirely unexpected developments can prevent a German retreat on the fifty-mile front between Arras and Noyon.

The question which confronts von Boehn seeing to be not, "Shall I retreat?" but "How far?"

The alternatives to which he can fall back are:

1. The line which the Germans held before the first battle of the Somme in 1916.
2. The Hindenburg line, to which the Germans fell back in February, 1917, after converting Picardy into a desert.

The first line, called the old Somme front, ran from the south of Arras to the east of Albert, thence southward through Marcourt and Curlu, crossed the Somme at Frise and ran by way of Fontaine-les-Chappy, Damery and Dancourt to Noyon.

REACH LINE AT FOUR POINTS.

This line has been reached by the Allies at four points and has been actually crossed at some others. At Beaumont-Hamel, Damery, Parvillers and Armancourt the British stand on this old German line, and at Puisieux-au-Mont they have passed beyond it.

The Hindenburg line of 1917 ran from the east of Arras, where it rested on the south bank of the Scarpe, through Cambrai and St. Quentin to La Fere. It was this line from which the Germans debouched on their super-drive March 21, last.

The last few days have seen the greatest stiffening of the German defence in the centre of the Picardy line, between Chaunes and Roye. Ludendorff knows that, in view of the allied wedge in his line, it is no longer a question of the flanks holding out while the centre draws back, but exactly the reverse. His centre must now hold at all cost while he is drawing in his wings.

WAR SUMMARY

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

Allied troops have again smashed ahead on the Picardy and Flanders fronts.

On the Picardy front the British and French are carrying out, with steady success, their triple enveloping movement against the German key positions of Albert and Lassigny and the German base at Roye.

North of the Roye road the British last night lunged forward, making another gain, while the French fought their way through Loges forest, south of the city, attaining the eastern border.

Although the operations of the past twenty-four hours have been on a minor scale, the allies are biting huge chunks out of the German front in the Merris-Vieux-Berquin sector of the Flanders front and on the southern end of the Picardy battle zone.

The allies are only about one mile from Roye and are pushing onward despite the desperate resistance of the Germans. The greatest German efforts to stem the allied advance were centred late yesterday and last night just west of the Oise River, where the French are pushing up the Compiegne-Noyon railway to get behind the German defences of Lassigny.

Two powerful German counter-assaults were made in that region, but the attacking troops were hurled back and the French positions remained absolutely intact.

The German line bulges in a southwesterly direction in that area and if the French advance continues much farther, the Germans probably will be compelled to withdraw, just as they have been retreating on the Lys salient and north of Albert.

Acting in the closest co-operation, the British and French are delivering a series of concerted thrusts over individual sectors which, taken collectively, make up a very wide front.

Already the important result of these tactics is plainly seen. Roye is half encircled and the British are pushing east of Albert, both to the north and south of the city.

In the zones around Roye and Lassigny the Germans are now back upon the line which they occupied so long before the offensive operations began early this year.

Violent cannonading is reported from the northern end of the Flanders front, particularly along the Franco-Belgian frontier and south of Ypres. Whether or not the increasing activity of the German artillery in that region preludes an infantry diversion cannot be foreseen. It is probable, however, that the bombarding is mainly for the purpose of harassing the British and doing as much damage to their defensive works and transport service.

This was the tenth day of the allies' newest offensive in Picardy. There is a lull in the infantry fighting along the Vesle River (south of the Aisne), where American soldiers are holding the line.

4 AMBULANCE DRIVERS DIE IN ACTION

Paris, Aug. 17.—Another testimonial of the bravery of American army ambulance drivers, a large number of whom are serving with the French army, is contained in the casualty list of the most recent fighting between the Aisne and the Marne. The list shows that three drivers were killed, one died of wounds, and eighteen were injured, while six are missing and believed to be captured.

Although rated as non-combatants, they have gone into the thick of the fray and performed their duties in true soldierly manner. From every quarter praise for the men in the ambulance service is heard.

The French have proclaimed that the fearlessness and contempt for danger constantly exhibited by the American drivers have, in more than one instance, proved a strengthening of the morale of their own troops.

Those killed in action were:

John W. Crane, Pottsville, Pa.
Vernon B. Heckroth, Philadelphia.
Miles A. Suares, Bloomfield, N. J.

The names of two New Englanders are contained in the list. Stanley Mill of Lexington, Mass., is reported dead of wounds, and Gordon B. Stevens of New Haven, Ct., is listed as severely wounded.

GERMANS GIVEN TASTE OF WILD WEST WORK

Enemy Machine Gunners Picked Off by Yankee Sharpshooters Near Bray

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Picardy Battlefront, Aug. 17.—Amidst the crash of big German shells, that whined overhead or burst with loud detonations nearby, American soldiers, who helped the British on the northern sector of the Picardy front, organized a swimming resort on the Somme near the scene of their victory and went in bathing by the score.

"Duck, fellows, hear comes one," the Yankees would shout as a shell would roar overhead and burst nearby, tearing up the road. Then all heads would go under the water, but the boys continued to defy the German artillery.

The Americans gave the Germans a touch of Wild West fighting in the struggle west of Bray. The rapidity and concentration of the American musketry volleys was one of the most surprising features of the American victory.

The Yankees went forward without the aid of machine guns, depending entirely upon their rifles—a performance that won the approbation of the French and British.

German machine gun nests were encircled and the gunners were picked off by the sharpshooting doughboys. Many used only their automatic pistols, shooting the Boches through the head on the run. There were a number of Westerners in the fight.

It is amazing how quickly the Americans became accustomed to the enemy artillery fire, despite the fact that they received their first baptism at the opening of the offensive a week ago.

The Americans are proud of their achievements in wresting a strip of the landscape than which there was no tougher bit of ground along the woods and ravines bordering the outskirts of Bray.

The weather has been hot since the Americans were in the thick of the fighting and they have been refreshing themselves by dips in the Somme.

Worcester Boy, Wounded by Shrapnel, Declares Germans Were Routed

Worcester, Aug. 17.—Private Thomas F. Loan, Company A, 104th Regiment, Infantry, who was listed as severely wounded, has written his mother, Mrs. Daniel F. Loan of No. 37 Winter street, that his wounds are not as serious as reported.

The letter, in part, follows:

"Dearest Mother:

"I suppose you have been waiting for a letter for some time. First of all, I am feeling fine. My wounds do not hurt in the least. Did you get notified that I was hurt? I was hit in the chest with a piece of shrapnel, but it didn't go in very far. I was operated on the same night that I was hit and they took three pieces of shrapnel out of me.

"I think the old gas mask saved my life for it stopped a big piece of shrapnel and it was lucky there was no gas for the shrapnel broke my mask to bits. The best of all was the way we made the Boche run. They were regular Howard Drews going over the hill that our boys took.

"My helmet was also right on the jump for it was dented by a piece of shrapnel but your son Tom is on his feet again. I don't know how long it will be before I get back to my company but keep my mail addressed to the company for I'm going back."

METIN, FRENCH LEADER, IS HONORED IN DEATH

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Surrounded by a civilian guard, the body of Albert Metin, head of the French Mission to Australia, who died in his room at the Fairmont Hotel, lay in state in the rotunda of the City Hall, and the American and French flags on the public buildings are at half-mast. The casket was placed in the City Hall, where the body was viewed by thousands.

ARREST WORCESTER MAN FOR SEDITIOUS TALK

Worcester, Aug. 17.—Charged with seditious utterances, Charles Lucas, twenty-eight, of No. 51 Grosvenor street was arrested at the shop of the George C. Whitney Company. It is alleged that he denounced the United States in conversation with shop employes and that he had in his possession literature of pro-German nature.

BRITISH AIRMEN HIT DESTROYER WITH BOMB

Big Explosion Caused on Enemy Warship—31 German Planes Downed

London, Aug. 17.—British airmen attacked and damaged a German destroyer by obtaining a direct hit upon the warship with a bomb, the British Admiralty announces.

Afterward a big explosion was seen to occur upon the destroyer.

In air engagements from Aug. 8 to Aug. 15, said the communique, 31 German airplanes and one balloon were destroyed and 15 other hostile machines were driven down out of control.

In the same period 60 tons of bombs were dropped on Zeebrugge and the Ostend docks and on other German military works in Flanders.

At the Varsebaere airdrome six German airplanes that were lined up were set on fire and the conflagration spread to the hangars on both sides. Two Gotha hangars were struck and one was demolished.

British airplanes, seaplanes and airships maintained a vigilant patrol over the sea, attacking German submarines, destroying mines and harassing enemy shipping.

Only three British machines failed to return, following the numerous engagements with the enemy.

GERMAN CHAINED TO MACHINE GUN

Worcester, Aug. 17.—How the Yankees saw a young German soldier chained to a machine gun in order to keep him at his post, is related by a Worcester boy who has been taking part in the big allied drive. Private Edward Craft, of Battery B, 102d Field Artillery, in a letter to his uncle, James R. Dorney, janitor at City Hall, tells of seeing "towns all shot to pieces, not a house left intact, and heaps of German soldiers left unburied by the enemy in their hurried retreat. "Just a little ways from where we are, there was a young German chained to a machine gun," he writes, "but the infantry got him first with a one-pounder. It almost cut him in two."

COMMITTEE CALLS ON GOVERNOR GRAHAM OF VERMONT TO RESIGN

DRASTIC ACTION BY G.O.P. LEADERS

Resolution by State Organization Result of Alleged Shortage in Accounts

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 17.—"Resolved, that it is the judgement of the Republican State Committee that the fair name and reputation of the State of Vermont make it the duty of Governor Horace F. Graham, of Craftsbury, to vacate and resign his office at once."

In these words the Republican leaders of the State call upon the chief executive to relinquish his office and retire to private life.

An alleged shortage of $20,000 in the accounts of the State Auditor, covering a period of fourteen years, when Governor Graham held that office—a shortage that the Governor has not yet satisfactorily explained—is the cause of the drastic action taken by the leaders of the State at a meeting held here.

GOVERNOR FAILS TO APPEAR.

Governor Graham was notified of the meeting and requested to be present, but he did not appear. The leaders deliberated the question for three hours and then passed the resolution.

Although there was much sympathy expressed for the Governor—and it was freely acknowledged that he had made a good executive during the stress of war—there was no division of opinion when the resolution came to a vote.

In spite of the sympathy expressed for the chief executive, there was a strong feeling that he should be held to strict account if he is guilty of the irregularities as charged. The Governor's explanation—if it can be called an explanation—has not proved satisfactory. He asked the people to be patient and await developments. He admitted that he had done wrong in the binding of his salary as expense money, and for that he was extremely sorry. But he has not made clear just what he meant by having done wrong.

FAVOR PROCEEDINGS.

Many prominent Republicans favor proceedings against the Governor. They point to the fact that since he took the State's money he has paid back more than half of what he took, which would seem to preclude the idea that he could find vouchers for the money he had spent.

It is the talk today that, in the opinion of Governor Graham's friends, he will not resign. But in case he does resign Lieutenant-Governor Roger W. Hulburt will step into his shoes. This would probably have an important bearing on the next election, for while Mr. Hulburt has not been ordered a candidate for the office, it is acknowledged that he is one of the strongest Republicans in the State.

Among those who were present when the resolution calling upon the Governor to resign was passed were Congressman Frank L. Green, former Governors C. W. Gates, W. W. Stickney and G. H. Prouty, Percival W. Clement and editors of the leading Vermont newspapers.

It has been known for some time that the de Haviland 4 actually was in use with the American Expeditionary Force, and this plane, with the Liberty motor installed, is the only one being produced in quantity.

What Will You Give?

By WIN BROOKS.

I STOOD on the dock as the ship came in,
Camouflaged, and grey, and grim,
And watched the shifting sea mist creep,
Out of the silence of the deep—
Come flitting 'round, then shift again,
To hide the things that once were men;
And then the sun broke through the mist,
And one little golden sunbeam kissed
The forehead of a man on deck—
The features of a human wreck,
And trav'ling down the furrowed face,
Revealed the glory of his face,
For in his eyes, unblinking eyes,
There dwelt the toll of sacrifice—
Behind them hung a blackened pall,
Before them stood a curtained wall—
But on those blanched lips, the while,
There played an everlasting smile—
A smile so sweet, a smile so rare,
It seemed as if those lips would tear
My very heart. The fog shut down,
The mist crept up with angry frown,
And shut that martyred face from view.

* * *

Then something down within me woke,
A trembling voice within me spoke—
"He gave his all that you might live,
He gave his all!" WHAT WILL YOU GIVE?"

Treaonls Collarless Crusader Puts On Collar Again

New York, Aug. 17.—S. Leighton Frooks has put on a collar! Other men, of course—timid souls without the courage to buck fashion—put on a collar every morning of their lives. But for S. Leighton Frooks to don a collar is rank treason.

Why? Because Frooks was the leader of the Collarless League of America, emancipator of the male neck, defender of the rights of the Adam's apple to fresh air and sunshine.

It was only a few days ago that the Collarless League began a crusade against the collar, which was to spread from Coney Island to Broadway, thence to all parts of the country, including Boston via rail and the Cape Cod Canal.

What happened to the crusade? Nobody knows. But when a reporter walked into the law office of Frooks, he found the great emancipator in a collar and tie.

"I am sorry," was all the renegade had to say.

Here are some of his sayings in the ardor of reform:

"There are better shell games. Why fail for the collar?"

"Put your money in stocks if you want to, but don't put your necks in them."

"The collar is the guillotine's only rival."

Those taking part were, besides Albert: Roland Howe, twelve; Norman Good, eleven; Marjorie Kreindl, eleven; and Ruth Lindberg, ten.

POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN MAKE A RUSH TO ENLIST

Squads of policemen and firemen are deploying on the Boulevard under Naval Recruiting station these days. There is an uncommon desire on the part of the uniformed force of Boston to enlist. Captain B. J. Doherty, chief of the station, has asked them all to wait until instructions come from Washington clearing up the situation about volunteering. Four policemen from Roxbury and four firemen from Engine 32 were among the first of the uniformed men to apply to Captain Doherty. One of the firemen, William Ryan of No. 104 Alexander street, who has a wife and child, passed a physical examination and was placed on the waiting list.

Provincetown, Aug. 17.—Provincetown's Bohemian art colony is still talking of the sensation at the annual costume ball of the Provincetown Art Association caused by Miss Hazel Hawthorne's appearance as a barefooted Greek shepherdess clad in a garment of white mull.

Miss Hawthorne's feature was the sensation of the affair.

The annual costume ball of the Art Association in the Provincetown Town Hall is one of the leading social events of the season. All of the artists and actors who comprise the galaxy of the celebrities who Summer here were present, and many creations of a fearful and wonderful nature were exhibited.

MISS CROSSMAN WINS PRIZE.

Among the first prize winners for excellent costumes were Miss Grace Crossman of New York, who charmed and pleased with her appealing interpretation dance in Oriental costume.

Other prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Lengle, garbed in Aztec bolo costumes; Oscar Gieberich as a Mexican cramp; E. E. Ambrose Webster and wife, as Japanese jinrikisha drawer and draughtsman; Misses Emily and Christine Nickerson and Miss Cara Campbell, in a unique impersonation of the auxiliary cruiser "Prairie," accompanied by two diminutive submarine chasers, Jo Hawthorne and a boy companion. The last mentioned feature won applause.

Among the original and elaborate creations which received honorable mention from the judges were George Elmer Brown, proprietor of the West End Art School, who appeared in the garb of an Arabian noble, and George Cram Cook, of the Washington Square Players, New York, who bedecked quite in a smashing orange burmoose as a Moorish prince.

Many local naval officials were present and gave a distinctly naval flavor to the occasion. Jackies and officers of the Merchant Marine with their lady friends lent attractive coloring to the event.

MISS HAWTHORNE IS 16.

Miss Hazel Hawthorne, whose bare feet and costume were the cynosure of all eyes, is a Middleboro girl. She is only sixteen years old. She is employed in the family of Harvey B. Gaul, who occupy the "Celia" cottage on Commercial street.

Miss Crossman, whose dancing won instant favor and endeared her immediately in the hearts of everyone present is a pupil of Luigi Albertieri in New York City. Miss Crossman lives at No. 64 West 55 street, New York, and is a great of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Halsey of Provincetown.

An even more elaborate carnival, if such a thing is possible, is promised by the Beach Combers Club composed of leading artists and actors on next Thursday evening.

"The Streets of Bagdad" will be portrayed by the forty club members, following which general dancing will be indulged in till the wee small hours. Everyone who attends the elaborate function will be expected to wear oriental costume, and a gala time is looked for.

However, the opinion is generally expressed that the "Streets of Bagdad" will have to "go some" to outdo the sensations of the annual costume ball of the Provincetown Art Association.

BORAH DRAFTS BILL TO SEIZE MEAT PLANTS

Senator Will Introduce Measure Authorizing Control By United States

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 17.—A bill carrying out the Federal Trade Commission's recommendations that the packing industry be supervised for the period of the war by the United States government, will be introduced by Senator Borah of Idaho soon after the Senate reconvenes.

Senator Borah announced today that the bill is now in preparation by the Federal Trade Commission. He believed its passage was certain and that it would have the active support of the administration forces in both houses.

The bill would give the government power to supervise the transportation of meats and to control the stock yards, but would not federalize the entire packing business and the manufacture of by-products.

"It is a temporary measure aimed to check profiteering," Senator Borah said. "In my opinion, however, it goes as far as it is wise to go in wartime when the attention of the government must be centred on things contributing more directly to the winning of the war. After the war, of course, it shall stand for complete government ownership."

Additional legislation to allow the President to supervise transportation of meats and control the stock yards, is unnecessary, Borah believed. The authority conferred in the National Defence Act, the railway control law and the food control law is sufficient he said. However, the Federal Trade Commission takes the opposite view and holds that any action must wait on new legislation.

If the evidence the Federal Trade Commission has can be substantiated, many of the packers can be put in jail for violation of the Sherman act, Borah asserted. "And that might help matters considerably," he added. "The example would prevent repetition of these unfair practices."

The Massachusetts State debt is $85,000,000. Against this there are accumulated sinking funds amounting to $45,000,000. In connection with the above announcement, State Treasurer Charles L. MAY FREE FALL RIVER DEATH CASE SUSPECT

Police Believe Man Arrested at New London Is Not Brown, Wanted for Crime

Captain William H. Proctor of the State police, in charge of the hunt for William Brown, wanted for wife murder in Fall River, has little hope that the suspect held in New London, Ct., is Brown, Brown's wife, Annie Donovan Brown, was murdered in Fall River more than a month ago.

The New London suspect is a weaver, as is Brown. He is also Brown's height and weight, however, been decorated with the chain of hearts, at the base of his neck, as was Brown. Motor Explosion Causes Accident; Army Officers Conducting Rigid Investigation

Bay Shore, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Two aviators were dashed to death from a height of 500 feet here within sight of a score or more of other airmen whose machines were flying at the time. The dead aviators were Lieutenant Harold F. Mahon, twenty-five, of Los Angeles, and Cadet G. F. Gedson, twenty-four, of Titusville, Pa.

The plane in which they flew was one of a squadron sent from the Hampstead field to cross Great South Bay and circle over the ocean near the coast line to look for submarines. When near the estate of Horace E. Havemeyer here, there was a loud explosion in the plane's motor, flames shot backward, and the machine turned nose down and plunged to earth.

Gedeon's safety strap broke and he was catapulted from the falling machine, striking the ground some little distance from the wreckage. He was instantly killed. Lieutenant Maxon was entangled in the twisted debris and survived but a few minutes.

Gov. Beeckman's Order Has Desired Effect—Operators Seem Willing to Close

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 17.—Governor R. Livingston Beeckman has taken the bit in his teeth and insisted that right shall lead the way in this more or less noted spot. His excellency has ruled that henceforth and forevermore gambling and Narragansett Pier shall be unknown one to the other.

That business is meant was demonstrated when High Sheriff Willcox personally passed the word to the several persons most interested in the palaces of chance As a result the little balls failed to click where before they rolled their merry way with festive gatherings about the board.

Nor was the stout gentleman busy in the centre of the table dealing from the case. Roulette, faro and kindred sports are banished for this season at least. The Governor means business, the gamblers know it and rather than court a period at one of the State institutions they are willing to shut their doors.

"WORST SEASON IN HISTORY."

Governor Beeckman's order to Sheriff Willcox is expected to be supplemented with like orders to the sheriffs of the several other counties in the State. The Governor has gone on record as being opposed to gambling in any of its forms and he has let it be known that during the balance of his term gambling shall not live in "Little Rhody."

The longer-headed of the "fraternity" appreciate conditions and are prepared to face the inevitable. They believe that the law will be enforced and they consider that jails look much better from the outside than from within. Consequently Narragansett Pier should be devoid of all gambling tonight, for the first Saturday night this year.

"We might just as well have closed up on July 4," said one man more or less intimate with affairs here. "This has been the worst season in the history of the Pier. With the Casino and the big hotel closed business hasn't been at all good.

ORDER TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

"The men who conduct the several gambling places have not found conditions at all different from those existing in other business. There has been some play, but it hasn't been anywhere near like that of other years. Some houses have operated at a loss, and the order of the Governor will, I think, be welcomed by them.

"There have been gambling crusades before. We never took them seriously, however. In this instance it looks as though business were meant. It appears to us as if the Governor laid the law down in a way that left no opening for misinterpretation. The games will go for now but the question is will they remain gone. Rhode Island has always gambled and I don't doubt but that she will continue to do so."

GALLINGER, VETERAN OF SENATE, IS DEAD

cord, where the funeral will be held next Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the First Baptist Church.

Senator Gallinger, who was born at Cornwall, Ont., March 28, 1837, was the oldest member of the United States Senate in point of continuous service, having served continuously since 1891.

His earlier life was spent in the practice of medicine, during which he was a frequent contributor to many medical journals and served as Surgeon-General of New Hampshire with the rank of Brigadier-General during 1879 and 1880.

He began his political career in 1872, when he was elected to the New Hampshire House of Representatives. He was in the Senate in 1878, '79 and '80, serving as president of that body in '79 and '80. He served as a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1876 and was chairman of the Republican State Committee from 1882 to 1890 and from 1892 to 1897.

He was chairman of the New Hampshire delegations of Republicans to the national conventions in 1888, 1900, 1904 and 1908. He made the speech seconding the nomination of Benjamin Harrison in 1888, and at time of death was a member of the Senate Committee on Appropriations, Finance, Rules and Printing.

Senator Gallinger was known as one of the most forceful men in the United States Senate, and one of the chiefs of the "Old Guard." A political writer once termed him "the most typical Bourbon in the Upper House."

In appearance he resembled somewhat President Cleveland, a resemblance which was aided by the fact that both wore mustaches of about the same color, size and shape.

He used to explain that he got into politics by accident. Soon after his marriage to Miss Mary A. Bailey of Salisbury, N. H., his bride broke her ankle, ending preparations for a trip West, where they had intended to settle. This led the Senator to take up the practice of medicine. For 23 years he followed this profession, covering miles of territory day and night. Hundreds of residents got to know him personally, and one day elected him moderator. Thus began his long political career.

PRETTY CAMBRIDGE GIRLS SEEK SWIMMING TITLE

Four pretty mermaids from the classic shades of Cambridge will be in the big "splash" in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 24, when the shot is fired which will set in motion the fourteenth annual water carnival of the Boston AMERICAN.

And they expect to take the lead and outdistance 100 or more other competitors in the great race, a distance of one and one-half miles and 200 feet, run under the rules of the New England Amateur Athletic Association.

These girls, Misses Mae Hanaford, Helen Spellman, Carrie Silver and Dorothy Mullen, are members of the East Cambridge Swimming Girls' Club and are taking endurance swims daily in the vicinity of the bathhouse off Commercial avenue, Cambridge.

SUCCESS ASSURED.

The race promises to be the most successful run by the Boston AMERICAN. The girls who have entered their names as contestants in the race should be governed by Annette Kellerman's advice. She is the world's greatest woman swimmer.

"In preparing for a distance contest in the water," she says, "it is advisable to eat rather heavily, if your digestion is good, for a day or two before. But if your digestion is bad, don't try long distance swims.

"Never mind if you do gain a few pounds; you will lose them very rapidly in the water and, incidentally, you will need plenty of nourishment on a long swim."

An efficient corps of lifesavers under John J. Caffitti Fishery will follow the contestants in rowboats. The lifesavers and the police, in charge of Lieutenant Albert Chapman, will co-operate to prevent accidents.

MANY NEW ENTRIES.

Every arrangement will be made for the comfort and safety of the swimmers. There will be a Red Cross tent near the float, with physicians, nurses and pulmotor.

Woman Arrests Man She Charges With Annoying Her

New York, Aug. 17.—Miss Margaret Henley of the Bronx, acting as a policewoman, arrested a sculptor, Stefano Rabboni, charging him with following her about and annoying her.

Just as Magistrate Pollock was about to adjourn court Miss Henley came into the courtroom, bringing the sculptor with her, holding to the collar of his coat. She said she desired to make a charge of disorderly conduct against him.

Miss Henley said that while trying to get away from him she entered the vestibule of an apartment house. The man followed, she said, and made an insulting remark. Thereupon, she said, she grasped the man's coat collar and brought him to court.

NOTED WRITERS SEE SOLDIERS IN CAMP LIFE

New York Visitors Take Trip to Ayer and War Community Service Cottages

To really see Jack washing his clothes, falling in line for "chow"; to know how a soldier spends his time while preparing for the big game over there, and to become acquainted with the means and ways that the War Camp Community Service provide for the entertainment and pleasure of the soldiers leisure hours.

These are a few of the things that such noted writers as Basil King, Princess Radziwill, Jessie Payne, L. Wallace Hopkins, Dr. William T. Hornaday, Gelett Burgess, Berton Braley, Captain George Schriner and Edward Hungerford came to Boston from New York today to view at the Naval Radio School at Cambridge, Camp Devens at Ayer and the various war community service cotages.

TOUR BY AUTOMOBILE.

As the guests of the Boston War Camp Community Service, all of the party were taken in automobiles for a general survey of the war work accomplished in the service clubs. On passing through Cambridge they stopped at the Radio School where they met Chaplain Parker and Lieutenant Pennoyer, who explained the work of the 4,000 radio students.

On arriving at Ayer the writers visited the Soldiers' Club in West street, maintained by the War Camp Community Service. They lunched at the Enlisted Men's Club at Robbins Pond.

After luncheon they went to Nantasket, where they were joined by Joseph Lee, president of the National War Community Camp Service; Seymour H. Stone, district representative of New England; Charles Jackson, chairman of the executive committee; Mrs. John Balch, chairman of the home hospitality; George H. Cole, chairman of the committee for the South Shore Service Club. Dinner was served at the Atlantic House.

ENTERTAINED ON SOUTH SHORE.

The guests were especially entertained at the South Shore Service Club, and a dance was given at the Special Aid society at Allerton.

This evening the party will attend a dance at the Hotel Somerset, at which Mrs. A. Lincoln Filene is hostess for the enlisted men. The dance is given by Mr. Filene, under the auspices of the Boston War Camp Community Service. Mrs. Filene entertains each week, for the enlisted men. Three hundred couples are expected this evening.

Later in the evening a dance will be given to observe the activities at the United Service Club, No. 88 Boylston street. All will leave on the midnight train for New York.

WILSON ENJOYS TANG IN NORTH SHORE AIR

House. He spent the morning in walking and had no definite plans for the rest of the day. This lack of program is one of the pleasant features of his visit. He has been invited to visit a Red Cross horse show at Pride's Crossing this afternoon, where Judge Moore's fine thoroughbreds will be displayed, but the indications were that he will not attend.

"If he went there it would result in a display, and that is just what the President wishes to avoid," said Gordon Auchincloss, son-in-law of Colonel House.

Perfect weather continued to favor the President today. Early was the cloudiness and it was a trifle cooler than yesterday and the day before. There was a refreshing breeze that was immensely pleased the White House, the nation's head. For the first time in months Mr. Wilson slept under a blanket last night.

"He thinks it is wonderful," said Mr. Auchincloss. "He is overjoyed at the fine weather and cool air. We hope it continues while he is here." When he will leave has not been determined, but he will not go to Boston before Thursday. It is his intention to remain as long as he can."

ARREST ALLEGED AUTO THIEVES AFTER CHASE

A chase which lasted for more than a mile and a half between the police patrol of station 17, Neponset, Roxbury, and an automobile containing four alleged thieves ended in the arrest of the men by Reserve Officer Coleman J. Mogan of the Back Bay police station.

The men who were arrested are: Stephen J. Crowley, sixty years, of Frankfort street, Roxbury; John A. Decourcy, twenty-two years, of Parker street, Roxbury; Joseph A. Dolan, twenty years, of Longwood avenue, Roxbury, and Martin Feeney, twenty years, of Winsley street, Roxbury.

They were charged with the larceny of an automobile owned by Josephine B. Andrews of No. 448 Audubon road, Back Bay, on August 8.

SEASON IN FULL SWING, PARK SQ. OPENS

Most people have to be contented with a single room at a hotel and, as an extravagance, a bath. Such an order as "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" would be utterly prohibitive.

However, Boniface Fred Wright of the Park Square is offering "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" for only two dollars, and that's the maximum, not the minimum.

How does he do it? Why, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" is the curious and rather significant title of a farce produced by A. H. Woods which opens the season at the Park Square Theatre.

This attraction moves from New York, where it has been galvanizing Broadway for most a season with its original allignment practically intact. Florence Moore still heads the cast, and John Arthur, her new leading man, will be most pleasantly remembered from "Fair and Warmer" last season.

Cunning Conversation

This bright little Broadway effusion "Oh Lady, Lady" is more plentifully besprinkled with bright pithy lines than most musical conglomerations.

Most of them appear to have been presented to Theresa Maxwell Conover, who can put over a sharp tart witticism better than most actresses. Miss Conover plays a mother who doesn't care much for what her daughter intends to assume as a husband. She remarks about him that "His head is only a parking place for his hat."

She tells him, "Go to the Library, you know, where they keep the books."

Describing him she says, "Nature is not infallible, but she abides by her mistakes."

Harry C. Brown remarks, "I am a straight forward fellow. I believe in calling a Ford a Ford."

Vivienne Segal, the heroine, observes to her cynical mamma, "Love is the greatest force in the world," "Greatest farce" you mean.

When daughter appears in her wedding gown she says, "Take good care of it, you'll need it for your next wedding."

Margot Kelly, the Titian tiled damsel who upsets things in the play, has some sharp lines. She declares "A declaration of love on paper is worth two on your knees."

She also describes the hero when she used to know him in the village as "so innocent that he would make little Eva look like Sappho.

Carl Randall, the hero, remembers Margot when she was the village school mistress as well as his sweetheart and he says, "she made him bring a written excuse from his mother every time he was late in calling on her."

"Maytime" Musings.

I saw "Maytime" for the second time within a week recently, and I can honestly say I enjoyed it even better the second time than I did the first. There are very few theatrical attractions which can stand the test of a rehearing close on the heels of the opening.

Even more than before I was impressed with the mirth-provoking ease with which the production is made, and the very artistic acting of the numerous small parts and bits.

When "A Tailor Made Man" was produced with a company of fifty-five actors and actresses there were numerous men who told George Cohan how unnecessary it was to carry regular actors for most of his small parts and how the payroll could easily be reduced a third without hurting the piece.

"It's a success, isn't it?" Cohan always replied. "What makes a success, anyway? I don't know. Maybe it's one of those little actors you think could be replaced by an extra person or omitted entirely. I'll take no chances."

And "A Tailor Made Man" has outrun all legitimate attractions in New York this year.

So in "Maytime" the Shuberts have filled the smallest parts with care. Maud Odell, one of the best known and most capable character actresses in the country, has but five minutes, but she makes Lizzie, Mat Van ant's third wife, something to be remembered. There is also the sympathetic comedy role of Madame Delphine which Rose Winter makes distinguished, and such bits as the auctioneer, the cop ster, the two chorus girls and P. T. Barnum, every one of which stands out like a bas relief.

Tale of a Shirt.

I was passing through the dressing room corridor of the Shubert one warm afternoon recently. Just ahead of me Maud Odell was arriving for her five wonderful minutes. Charles Purcell, the upper part of his body arrayed in an athletic shirt poked his head out of his dressing room. Miss Odell caught him in the act. Looking around for an audience she exclaimed enthusiastically:

"Look at Charlie. Isn't he a Lou Tellegen in his B. V. D.'s."

Anybody who saw Tellegan in "The King of Nowhere" will get the comparison.

Mitzi Drives at Broadway.

Little David Mitzi intends to knock Goliath Broadway "Ice Over Mesis" and the merry musical comedy which has entertained Boston for eight weeks this Summer with a four weeks' hiatus when Mitzi went on a vacation, will vacate the Tremont next Saturday night.

Colonel Savage keeps improving the cast preparatory to going "Over the Top" of New York. Ernest Marini has just been added. He is an eccentric dancer who can act as well as dance and he now plays the dancing Baron. Marini is half Italian, half English. His experience was gained in the London halls. After several seasons in legitimate attractions he joined the Kosloff Ballet at the time the Russian dance craze hit London. He toured America with the Pavlowa ballet.

Stage German Not Taboo

Charles Winninger, supporting Lew Fields in "Friendly Enemies," coming to the Plymouth, August 26, believes that the stage German will never die. According to Mr. Winninger, the more excited a German-American becomes the funnier he gets. "A lawyer friend of mine told me the other day," says Mr. Winninger, "of a German who came to him with a grievance. He had bought a cake somewhere and found on taking it home that one of its surprises was a cockroach. He took it to the baker and demanded his quarter back. The baker wouldn't give it to him because he had cut the cake. The German-American, my prototype in "Friendly Enemies" went to the lawyer and gave him $5 to make the baker come to time. The lawyer changed the $5 and through some indverience gave his client something back, a quarter. The German took the quarter, and, returning to the baker's, yelled, 'Aha, I told you I would get that quarter back.'"

"Some Night" Soon

The regular season at the Tremont will open August 28 with "Some Night," a new musical comedy which is the work of Harry Delf, a well known dancer and comedian. He wrote the words and music. Julian Mitchell staged it and K. and E. produce it, which proves that Harry must have something worth while. The troupe includes Forest Winant from "Turn to the Right," James C. Marlowe, Grace Edmond and other good people.

Hollis to Reopen Aug. 31

May Robson, who hasn't been in Boston for several seasons in the melodrama farce "A Little Bit Old Fashioned," has been chosen for the reopening of the Hollis. This piece ran for a long time in Chicago where it got good notices and pleased big audiences.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE

Of all the laughing hits of last season "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" seems to occupy first place in the popularity of theatregoers in New York and Chicago.

A. H. Woods will now present the play with the original New York cast and production at the Park Square Theatre for a limited engagement beginning Monday evening.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" is in three acts by C. W. Bell and Mark Swan. The story deals with the escapades of a mild and innocent young husband whose wife loves him because she thinks he is a gay Lothario. The young man is desperately in love with his wife, but as innocent of experience as the proverbial lamb. Nevertheless he is compelled to sustain his wife's illusions and reluctantly goes the way of folly. Things begin to happen to him. He finds himself in a lonely wayside inn, which, through a combination of unforeseen circumstances is turned into a veritable menagerie.

The cast, which is headed by that inimitable queen of comedy, Florence Moore, also includes John Arthur, who will no well remembered for his work in "Fair and Warmer," Carolyn Lilja, Dorothy Brenner, Sidney Shields, Grace Fielding, Tommy Meade, James Spottswood and others.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"America's Answer," the second United States official war film, enters upon the second big week of its run at the Majestic Theatre tomorrow night (Sunday).

The amount of work done by the American troops since their arrival in France thirteen months ago is something marvelous. The miles and miles of things they have accomplished, and which are shown in this remarkable pictorial history of the war, is the reclaiming of a large stretch of marshy land, and building thereon over three miles of solid concrete and steel docks, erecting warehouses to receive the thousands of tons of supplies necessary to support and sustain over a million and a quarter troops; the construction of nearly 700 miles of standardized railroads.

SHUBERT

"Maytime," the musical romance, is delighting large audiences at the Shubert, where it is being played by the original New York company, including Charles Purcell, Peggy Wood and William Norris.

TREMONT THEATRE

The last week of the engagement of the merry little Mitzi and Henry W. Savage's rollicking musical play, "Head Over Heels," will begin Monday night at the Tremont Theatre. Bostonians have flocked to it for eight weeks through the heat of the season, their enjoyment of the performance being even greater because of the adaptability of the Tremont for Summer attractions.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Mlle. Chilson Ohrman, an American prima donna soprano, will head the bill at Keith's Theatre next week. It will be Miss Ohrman's first appearance this season. In her program she includes "Il Bacio" by Arditi, "Blue Bird" by Kummer, and "Polonaise" from "Mignon."

Fradkin, assisted by Jean Tell, is also one of the topnotchers on the bill. Fradkin is a concert violinist and this engagement at Keith's will be his first in vaudeville. Miss Tell is a charming soprano and will sing many classical songs to the tune of Fradkin's violin.

Leo Beers, one of vaudeville's distinctive entertainers, will offer an entire new line of material than that which he presented on his last appearance in Boston. Ames and Winthrop are a pair of Broadway popular favorites and will give a thumbnail revue. The Decorators will give a new rural comedy, Beaumont and Arnold will appear in the Bergsantese, the Santons will offer a hilarious comedy, Ramsdell and Deyo are two clever dancers and Hostock's Riding School will give an exhibition of how circus riders are made.

GAYETY THEATRE

Joe Hurtig, the producer of the famous Bowery Burlesquers, with whom two genuinely gifty comedians, Billy Foster and Frank Harcourt, which is scheduled to appear at the Gayety Theatre next week, has succeeded in getting together one of the best casted shows in the realm of burlesque. A new two-act musical comedy has been provided which gives those famous comedians ample scope to display their versatility and talents.

The splendid cast in addition to the featured artists already named, is composed of several of the most prominent and valuable artists in the vaudeville and burlesque fields, and includes Marty Seamon, Grace Anderson, Joe Fern, Libby Hart, Pam Lawrence and Sylvia Webb and a few others of prominence.

WILBUR THEATRE

Once again F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott have scored a "knock-out" at the Wilbur Theatre, where they presented their fifth New York musical comedy masterpiece, "Oh, Lady! Lady!!" last Monday night to a record-breaking audience.

"Oh, Lady! Lady!!" which will start its second week next Monday, is conceded by far the best of the Princess Theatre offerings, of which Boston has seen "Nobody Home," "Very Good Eddie" and "Oh, Boy."

ORPHEUM THEATRE

A challenge bill of vaudeville is announced for the first half of the week at Loew's Orpheum. The calibre of the acts is such that it constitutes a challenge in comparison of worth. The leading act will be that of the Valanova troupe of gypsies, a company of singers and dancers especially gifted, who will present a program of gypsy songs and dances together with musical numbers of semi-classical composition. Fred Weber and company will offer a new and unique idea in ventriloquism, one that is out of the beaten path and has met with great favor wherever he has appeared. Tom Mahoney, the well-known comedian, will appear in his comedy monologue, "The Chairman of the Board." Other acts will be Vine and Temple, unique entertainers; Lillian Calvert, dainty singer and songs, and Jewett and Pendelton, gifted dancers. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, Fatty Arbuckle's new comedy, "The Cook," and William S. Hart in "Riddle Gawne," a screening of the story by Charles Alden Seltzer.

WALDRON'S CASINO

After many long interviews and correspondence Barney Gerard finally persuaded those well known comedians and parody kings, Hoey and Lee, to return to the field of their first endeavors, and they will be seen with the "Girls De-Looks" as the opening attraction at Waldron's Casino beginning with a matinee on Monday.

It is sixteen years since "Charley and Harry" were seen in burlesque, and no doubt a rousing reception awaits their return especially from the older patrons of this style of entertainment. The vehicle Mr. Gerard has provided is bound to find much favor, it is built for laughing purposes and constructed of material which these players handle with a zest that becomes hilarious.

COMING EVENTS

With a theme of topical interest, humanistic in treatment and said to be handled splendidly, "Friendly Enemies," the latest and greatest success from the office of A. H. Woods, will be the opening attraction at the Plymouth Theatre on Monday, August 26, when it will be presented with Lew Fields and a special Boston company which includes Charles Winninger, Marie Richards, Hilda Vaughn, Hubert Wilke, Natalie Manning and Allen Mathes.

The metropolitan premier of Leo Ditrichstein in a new play will occur at the Tremont Theatre on Monday night, September 16.

Cohan and Harris, with characteristic reticence, have not divulged the name of the comedy or the personnel of the cast, but it has been hinted that this vehicle has been written by Mr. Ditrichstein and A. E. Thomas.

MODERN THEATRE

Miss Billie Burke comes anew to the screen in her latest photoplay, "In Pursuit of Polly," which will have its first Boston showing here throughout the week at the Modern Theatre. It is an ingratiating story revolving around the central figure of a young girl, daughter of wealth, who is besieged by two suitors, to avoid whom she goes on a motor trip to parts unknown with the understanding that the one who catches her will be the accepted one. This pursuit leads to many lively adventures delightfully tinctured with comedy and with random touches of seriousness, and the termination of the story finds a surprising and agreeable climax. The companion photoplay will be "Friend Husband," in which Madge Kennedy will be seen as a young wife who marries in order to acquire an inheritance.

PARK THEATRE

Three big pictures will be shown next week at the Park. Franklyn Farnum and Anna Nilsson are seen in "In Judgment Of," a curious drama in which the hypnotic gifts of a young girl enable her to save her lover accused of grave crime. Harry Morey plays the leading role in "All Man" a picture full of love interest and mystery.

The big serial, "A Fight for Millions," featuring William Duncan, has a lot of ginger in it. A Vitagraph comedy and Hearst-Pathe news reel complete the picture bill. Miss Annie Laurie Leonard, solo singer, and the Park Orchestra will give a pleasing program. Sunday night presents Bessie Barriscale in "The Mating," and Mae Marsh in "Polly of the Circus."

FLOYD GIBBONS

Selwyn and Company, prominent New York theatrical producers, who will inaugurate the opening of their Park Square Theatre with A. H. Woods' successful comedy, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," announce that they have procured the services of Floyd Gibbons, the Chicago Tribune's war correspondent. Immediately upon the arrival of Mr. Gibbons into this country, which is scheduled to take place about the latter part of this month, he will begin a lecture tour that will include the principal cities of the United States. Selwyn and company aim to present him in precisely the same manner that they presented Irvin S. Cobb.

BEACON THEATRE

Miss Billie Burke and Madge Kennedy head their respective photoplays which are to be given their first Boston showings through the week at the Beacon Theatre. Miss Burke's vehicle is "In Pursuit of Polly," in which she enacts a young woman who seeks to elude two suitors by running away from them. They pursue her and in the pursuit the story takes on special interest through the many adventures that ensue. Miss Kennedy is pictured in "Friend Husband" as a wife who marries in order to obtain an inheritance which calls for her marriage as a necessity.

CAMOUFLAGE PAINT BY THE TON

Paint, just the ordinary composition of zinc, powders and linseed oil, is taking an important part in the winning of the war. It is used for camouflage work both at sea and on the land and the possibilities of this agency in war work may be gathered upon visiting the second United States official war picture, "America's Answer," which will begin an engagement.

In the pictures of the convoyed transports en route to France one may see the big steamers decorated with camouflage in a great variety of colors, while in the scenes at the front the large guns bear the peculiar markings made possible by the use of varied colored paints. And paint is used in camouflage work of a greater variety than there is any record.

In the official pictures the American paint shops in France are shown. The men of this department are seen handling and mixing tons of it for use all along the front wherever the Americans are stationed. The slogan of the American Paint Department is "Make Paint Win the War," and it is easy to see that paint is doing an important part.

Hart Owns Coach.

One of the most picturesque pieces of property in Buffalo Bill's famous Wild West show was the famous stage coach which the press man's room there was asked the question, "What has become of all the old coaches?" Like the buffalo, they had been consumed. And there are few left today, their owners treasuring them as historical collectors value their curios. The owner of one of these coaches is William S. Hart, the motion picture star. It is a rickety old land boat, and is a relic of the gold rush days of '49, yet so well made was it that it is yet service-able.

Recently when Mr. Hart was making his new photoplay, "Riddle Gawne," which will be given its first showings at the Orpheum Theatre the first half of next week, there was a call for just such an old coach. Mr. Hart had six horses attached to the ancient vehicle, and it was driven into the mountains, a distance of over two hundred miles. The coach stood the journey well and attracted considerable attention on its trip.

Madge Hugged a Fish.

A month ago Madge Kennedy had never seen a brook trout before it reached the hotel platter. Now, thanks to her new photoplay, "Friend Husband," which will be given its first Boston showings throughout all of next week at the Modern Theatre, she is capable of discouraging learnedly upon the life and habits of this piscatorial gem. Many of the exterior scenes of the photoplay were taken in New Hampshire upon an estate which is famed for its fishing preserves. Here Miss Kennedy undertook to cast flies for trout in a brook that runs through the property.

All went well until she had lost half a dozen costly fly hooks and wet her feet, and finally a fish deigned to seize her hook. Then came the fun. She had been told that trout were fighters once they were hooked, and the challenge found her determined not to give in, no matter how big and strong the fish. She played the little fish, and once she landed him on the rock where she was standing, she sat right down and hugged the little trout to her bosom until she could extract the hook from its mouth.

This novel method of assuring a catch brought screams of laughter from other members of her company, and when she looked at the trout that was less than six inches long she had to admit that her imagination had run away with her.

"I thought from the water that he kicked up that he was at least three feet long," she explained.

Girl and Judge in Battle of Wits.

A powerful mental battle between a young and beautiful girl and a learned judge is one of the gripping and dramatic scenes in the Metro presentation, "In Judgment Of," the six-act attraction at the Park Theatre for all next week. In the court room, presiding over the trial of a young doctor accused of murder sits the judge, the part played by Herbert Standing. Among the spectators in the room is the girl, Mary Manners (Anna Nilsson), who is in love with John O'Neal (Franklyn Farnum), the doctor. All the evidence is overwhelmingly against the man she loves, and yet she is thoroughly convinced of his innocence. With compelling insistence she keeps her eyes on the face of the judge, in turn cannot escape from her accusing look and is held as in a trance by a superhuman power. When the verdict of guilty is rendered by the jury, the judge can stand it no longer and confesses that he is the real offender.

Alice as Twins.

Alice Brady has the valuable facility of sinking her personality into each part that she enacts for the pictures, and this faculty is taxed severely through her playing of two characters in a dual role in her latest photoplay, "The Ordeal of Rosetta," which will be shown at the Codman Square Theatre the first half of next week.

3 EX-MAYORS IN FIGHT FOR CONGRESS

Candidates to the Number of 1,150 File Papers at City Hall

Political surprises were plentiful about City Hall when it came closing time for the filing of nomination papers with the Election Commissioners.

A glance through the mass of papers revealed that three ex-Mayors had filed their papers in the congressional fight and that two of them were going away outside their districts to get the honors.

The appearance of ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy in the race was an eleventh-hour surprise, and the announcement that City Councilor Daniel W. Lane had filed papers for the Republican nomination in the Eleventh District, in opposition to George Holden Tinkham, was the cause for considerable more talk.

Lane, it is recalled, had the Republican nomination some years ago, but was defeated by Andrew J. Peters. Josiah Quincy seeks the Democratic nomination in the Seventh District. His opponent, Francis J. Horgan, had expected to get the nomination without opposition.

MERRY WAR PROMISED.

Ex-Mayor James M. Curley filed his own papers. He was followed a couple of hours later by Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. With Curley and "Fitz" in the fight in earnest, and with Gallivan and Tague, the "Washingtonians"—fighting for their positions, the war will be a merry one according to all reports.

Much comment was created as a result of Josiah Quincy's act. Mayor Peters just appointed him to the chairmanship of the new Transit Commission at a salary of $6,000. He is also a member of the Constitutional Convention.

The apparent object of the Gaston forces is to re-enforce their ticket all along the line. To all appearances the organization is fast falling into line.

CURLEY vs. GALLIVAN.

Naturally all eyes are focussed on the Curley-Gallivan contest in the twelfth district. The former Mayor still has his recent defeat fresh in mind and the instinct of revenge will make this scrap worth watching.

It is also interesting to note that Congressman James A. Gallivan has another foe to combat with in the person of William H. O'Brien, head of the telegraph bureau of the Public Service Commission.

What will happen in the famous old Tenth District is a matter of much speculation. Congressman Peter F. Tague, with back to the wall, has, at present, five rivals. They include ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, James H. Brennan, Thomas H. Giblin, Thomas F. Coffey and John H. Farley.

BRENAN BREAKS A RECORD.

One of the number, Brennan, broke all records when he filed papers for all three—Congress, Senate and the House.

"Tom" Giblin filed for both Congress and Senate.

Altogether 1,150 candidates filed papers at City Hall. Last year the number was 958. No such numbers have been recalled since the days of the Progressive party.

He applied the plaster and suffered severely as a result.

OLD PROVIDENCE PALS AWAIT SUNDAY

Sporting Fraternity Reported Ready to Welcome Evangelist with Open Arms

Providence, Aug. 17.—Billy Sunday is going to be received with open arms by the old-time sporting men of this city, who say he will always be "Billy" with them, and they are loath to believe that their old friend will hammer away haphazardly.

They recall the evangelist in the baseball days and do not believe he will "take advantage" of old friends, a number of whom are credited with being of some gambling payroll, for old-time sake.

A recent letter received by Chairman John Fletcher tells of the pleasure anticipated by Sunday during his visit to this city.

Whether Billy Sunday still holds the same views of the "old friends" who are in his hallway as a result of their connection with gambling houses is a question that does not worry the ancient sports.

One recognized and admitted gambler of years gone by says of Billy Sunday:

"I won't be afraid to grab him by the hand as I did when things were good with me around here. He was the greatest base-runner in his day. And he took a little drink at that. Of course, he can change his mind, but one word from him will convince me as to my welcomeness. We will be glad to see Billy and he can do lots of good for those who need it."

Governor Beeckman, Mayor Gainer of this city and other State and city officials throughout the State will be asked to attend the dedication of the tabernacle September 15, say campaign officials.

M. & B. CARMEN VOTE TO BACK STRIKE PLAN

Insist on Increase in Wages or Decision by National War Labor Board

Members of the Middlesex and Boston Street Carmen's Union, at a special meeting, by unanimous vote, agreed to empower the officers of the union to order a strike, if the management of the company does not grant an increase, or agree to refer the question of more wages to the national war labor board.

The men are working under an agreement which will not expire until June 30, 1919, and the leaders say that the request for higher wages was not by the officers of the company with the statement that the agreement would be enforced.

In a statement issued by the officers of the union, they said in part:

"We have been trying for some months to get the company either to raise our wages to an amount sufficient for our men to live on, or else submit the question as to whether or not we should have an increase, and if so, what it should be, to the National War Labor Board.

"We are as well aware as anyone of the desirability and necessity of keeping agreements, but this war makes it impossible for our men to live on the wages that they receive. Our men and their families must live. They can neither eat agreements nor sleep on them nor wear them."

THEATRES

FENWAY THEATRE

The bill for the coming week at the Fenway includes, on the first three days, Alice Brady in "The Ordeal of Rosetta," Baby Marie Osborne in "The Voice of Destiny," the latest news weekly, Burton Holmes Travel and "The Allied War Review," which is made up of actual war scenes.

On the last three days of the week Bryant Washburn is featured in "Kidder and Co." and Peggy Hyland in "Other Men's Daughters."

CODMAN SQ. THEATRE

Four big vaudeville acts are on the bill at the Codman Square Theatre, the first half of which are big entertainers. The leading act will be "Inbad, the Sailor," described as an "Arabian Nights Fantasy," and is presented by a man and two women. It is a comedy skit of unique qualities. Others on the bill will be Hipkman brothers, comedians and dancers, in blackface; Nainon, a gifted player of Hawaiian guitarists, and Clara and West, songs and comedy. The screen attractions will be the latest news pictures, a comedy, and the photoplay, "The Ordeal of Rosetta," picturing Alice Brady in a dual role of a play which is full of sensational thrills.

GLOBE THEATRE

Theda Bara will be seen as the orphan girl in the William Fox production, "The Two Orphans," a role widely different than her customary roles, yet one in which she has won great praise. It has been pronounced a meritorious production. The other photoplay will be the Cecil De Mille production of Rupert Hughes' story of society and the war, "We Can't Have Everything." Fatty Arbuckle will be seen in his comedy, "Good Night Nurse."

LANCASTER THEATRE

A pair of photoplay bills that promise unusual pleasure are announced for the Lancaster Theatre during the week. For the first half there will be shown Kitty Gordon, the beautiful English actress, in her photoplay, "Vera the Medium." It is a story of society with mysteries surrounding the mysterious woman who poses as Vera of occult powers. Miss Gordon shows some of her excellent gowns and costumes in the course of the play. The companion picture will be dainty Ruth Roland in the filming of the famous drama, "Sins of Society." The bill for the last half will include Clara Kimball Young in "The Claw."

BOSTON THEATRE.

General Pershing and the American heroes of the Marne will be seen celebrating the Fourth of July in Paris on the screen of the Boston Theatre next week.

With this great picture there will also be a screen specialty, "Her Husband's Honor," with Edna Goodrich as the star.

The vaudeville bill is an extremely good one. Ethel MacDonough, with an exclusive repertoire of character songs and gowns, will be a feature.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

A big and pleasing photoplay bill is announced at Lowe's Columbia Theatre the first half of the week. William Farnum will be shown in the William Fox production of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." Mr. Farnum in the character of Jean Valjean enacts a role that calls upon his fullest gifts for displaying force and tender appeal, and the production has been pronounced to be of the highest standard.

RED SOX AND FOHLMEN START BIG SERIES AT FENWAY PARK; BABE RUTH VS. GUY MORTON

By H. W. LANIGAN.

The season's big, all-important series, Red Sox vs. Cleveland Indians, was to get underway at Fenway Park this afternoon; carded box artists, Babe Ruth and Guy Morton; battling time, 3 o'clock.

On paper the Red Sox own a lead of two games over Cleveland. Good news, folks, their advantage is really a wee bit pudgier than that; those Indians must beat the Red Sox three straight in order to dislodge them from first place.

Let Cleveland win today and repeat Monday and our Sox would still remain on top, to wit:

Red Sox	65	47	.580
Indians	66	48	.579

So, exactly as those figures show, nothing short of a clean sweep will put the Indians ahead of the Red Sox.

Were times normal, meaning that if this country and its doughty allies were not busily engaged putting the kibosh on Prussianism, Boston would be baseball mad today.

As it is, if there's any particular interest in what's doing, ditto what's what, in the game, Fenway Park will be packed to the overflowing stage this afternoon, with two more monstrous turnouts on hand Monday and Tuesday.

Let this series prove a flivver, with anything short of a veritable mob witnessing today's matinee, and the powers that be in baseball will be furnished the positive "flash" that the public cares not a whoop about baseball and that the world's series, if played, will prove a frost.

Manager Fohl is in Boston with a party of seventeen athletes. In addition to Morton, who, the same as his manager, used to hold forth at Waterbury, the club's boxmen are Stanley Coveleskie and Jim Bagby, who are bound to follow Red Guy to the hillock in this series; Fred Coumbe, Johnny Enzmann and George McQuillan, veteran National Leaguer, who was recently plucked from Columbus by Magnate Dunn.

Steve O'Neill and Chet Thomas are the catchers, and, in addition to the regulars, headed by good old Tris Speaker, with Smoky Joe Wood having a particularly big season, there's Bob Bescher, veteran outfielder, who always was speedy and who is pulling a sparkling comeback.

The fans attending today's game were prepared to give the glad hand to Speaker, Wood, Thomas and Coumbe, all former Fenway idols, and, at the same time, "pull" hard for them to be outstepped and outfought by Ed Barrow's band of gamecocks.

The Sox dropped three out of four when they called on the Fohls a few weeks ago. They're out to settle that score and now's the time. Everybody up!

BIG AUTO STARS RACE FOR RICH PRIZE TODAY

DePalma Made Favorite to Land Top Honors In Speed Tests at Sheepshead Bay

By TOM THORP.

New York, Aug. 17.—Six of the most daring gasoline jockeys in the annals of auto racing meet in the $27,000 International Sweepstakes on the Sheepshead Bay Speedway today.

Besides the rich prize the winner of the event will be awarded the sprinting crown of the auto racing world.

All of the six drivers and their cars are in perfect condition to create new world's figures for the various distances at which the sprinting championship will be decided.

Ralph De Palma, hero of scores of auto classics, rules a slight favorite over the field for the final honors.

It has been seldom the good fortune of the metropolitan auto racing public to be granted the opportunity of witnessing so many interesting contests as in the past twelve months.

Through the good management of "Big Bill" Wellman, now a member of the national army, the once tremendously popular sport has scored a complete comeback.

The "boy promoter" accomplished what other athletic engineers failed to bring out. He succeeded in making auto racing at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway popular.

The events which will decide the championships are to be at two, ten, twenty, thirty and fifty miles. Every driver will be asked to start in each of these evetns.

Besides Ralph De Palma, the favorite, who will pilot a giant Packard Twin-Six, the race brings together Louis Chevrolet, now fifty-four years old and dean of gasoline jockeys; Dario Resta, the sprinting sensation of a couple of years ago; Arthur Duray, the French war veteran, who holds the European record of whizzing at the rate of 147 miles an hour; Ralph Mulford, the American road racing king, and Ira Vail, the youngster who stole the handicap crown away from De Palma two seasons ago.

All these men have made record-breaking performances in their tuning up stunts at the Sheepshead Bay course. Judging from this the races today are very apt to be recorded in the annals of auto racing as the speediest of all time on a two-mile track.

Westy Hogan Beaten a Nose by Cudgel in Record Time

By ED CURLEY.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The race that set the nerves tingling, as nerves haven't tingled in years, came about when Cudgel captured the Schenectady Handicap by a nod from Westy Hogan.

To achieve this famous victory Cudgel was forced to clip the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:56, or three-fifths of a second faster than the old track record, made by Enfilade a few days ago.

It was a spectacle that thrilled the vast crowd present, especially as the field turned into the home stretch. Up to that station Westy Hogan had led, with Cudgel a few lengths behind in the early running. As they swung around for the crucial drive Cudgel got within a length of Westy Hogan.

Down the stretch they thundered. Both horses were straight as strings covering the ground in gigantic strides. A quarter from home Cudgel drew a little nearer. Down came the lash on Westy Hogan's flanks and the classy brown colt jumped away from the string.

Another sixteenth shot by and Cudgel felt the thumps of the leather. With a gallant effort he bounded forward and got on even terms with his antagonist. Without losing a stride they came closer and closer to the wire.

Ten yards from the line Sande made a superhuman effort and fairly lifted Cudgel over victorious. Cudgel was a hot favorite in the betting.

SPEAKER HEADED FOR TECH AVIATION SCHOOL

Tris Speaker, headliner of the Fohl troupe and one of Boston's old diamond heroes, plans entering the Naval Aviation Service as soon as the baseball season is over. Speaker saw Ensign Hahn, recruiting officer in charge of the New York district, when in Gotham this week, and practically completed arrangements to secure his papers.

Speaker expects to enter Tech school. Two other big leaguers headed for that institution are Bill Lamar and Aaron Ward of the New York Yankees.

McGOVERN GOES LIMIT WITH FRANKIE BRITT

Lowell, Aug. 17.—Frankie (Young) Britt, of New Bedford, outpointed Young Terry McGovern of Philadelphia in a fairly fast twelve-round bout at the Crescent A. C., putting up a classy enough finish to gain the referee's award. In the preliminaries Charley Parker of Boston defeated Johnny Gray of Chelsea; Tommy Flannagan of New Bedford won from George Brooks of Lowell, and Frank Chaney of Beachmont and Young Jones of Boston went to a draw.

Mayer Comes to Grief

Erskin Mayer lost his first game since the Pirates acquired him from the Phillies, Dodger Cheney downing him, 6-1. He had bagged eight straight.

SMART GALLERY AT LONGWOOD FOR FINALS

Fred B. Alexander and Beals C. Wright, heroes of many a hard-fought tennis battle, were to play Vincent Richards, New York city's sensational fifteen-year-old schoolboy player, and W. T. Tilden, in the finals in the National tennis doubles at Longwood, this afternoon. The big match was programmed to get under way at 2:45 o'clock.

Alexander and Wright won the right to meet the New York pair by registering a clean-cut triumph over Hayes and Burdick, Western wizards, in their semi-final round engagement. The scores were 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

All in all, it was to be a very busy afternoon for Alexander. Right after his engagement in the doubles he was to pair up with Miss Molla Bjurstedt, champion of champions, in the final round in the mixed doubles. Their opponents are Mrs. George W. Knightman and Irving C. Wright.

A sparkling gallery was in attendance yesterday and Longwood C. C. officials were confident that one of the old "before the war" throngs would be on hand this afternoon.

The entire receipts of the tournament are to be donated to the Training Camp Activities fund.

RUDOLPH GETS LACED BY LEAGUE TAILENDERS

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—As the Braves did not arrive from the metropolis of Massillon, O., in time to take part in a double-header with the Cardinals yesterday, the twin show was put over until today. A single game was played and the locals won by the top-heavy tally of 8-0.

Rudolph yielded eight runs and ten hits in two innings and gave way to Otis Crandall, whose windup was very "katish." Only Gonzales went hitless, Anderson and Fisher, with three drives each, showing the way. Report has it Manager Stallings is going to pick up Catcher Grover Hartley.

WINCHESTER TROTS OUT STARS AGAINST MEDFORD

The fast Medford and Winchester teams were billed to hook up on Manchester Field, Winchester, this afternoon in one of the day's big amateur games. White and McKenzie were carded to be in the points for Winchester. Charley Donnellan and Chet Sanford of Medford High's pennant-winners; Bill Peckham of Colby; Gray, Hatch, White and Joe Gilmore, former Southern Association shortstop, completed Winchester's fast lineup.

SACRED HEART PARISH HAVING BIG CARNIVAL

The Sacred Heart parish field day was to take place today at Wood Island Park, East Boston. Four baseball games, track sports and a tug-of-war featured the spicy athletic card. Tonight there will be a vaudeville show and moving pictures, followed by a dance. The Rev. James O'Neil is pastor of Sacred Heart Church.

A Restful Romance

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

The ball game was over and the short season was drawing to a close.

Bertrand Bustem, the hard-hitting left fielder, was strolling slowly homeward, accompanied by little Sarah Slam, the girl he had loved since childhood.

"Somehow," said Sarah, softly, "somehow I feel strangely happy to think that soon you will be with them colors."

Bertrand Bustem bowed his bean.

"Then colors is O. K., kid," he said at length. "But I kinda hate to say good-by to them yellow bills. It means—it means that our little home will have to wait."

The fair girl smiled bravely and patted her hero on the neck with her pretty parasol.

"Never mind, dearest!" she exclaimed, stoutly, so stoutly that a fan across the street thought she was addressing him. "Never mind! There is a greater duty lurking for us all behind the rose hedges of today. As for the little home, it can wait—and I can wait for it and for you. I could never marry a craven, Bertrand. It would kill me!"

And suddenly the mist rolled away from the eyes of Bertrand Bustem. A strange feeling of peace swept over him as he gazed into the liquid orbs of Sarah Slam. She had shown him the way!

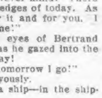
"Little Joan of Arc!" he exclaimed, "tomorrow—tomorrow I go!"

"Tomorrow you will be on a ship?" she asked, joyously.

"Homorrow," he said, "tomorrow I will be on a ship—in the shipyards!"

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT



Mike Donovan's fighting career, which began with his 97-round battle with Jack Boyne in 1866, came to its conclusion in 1882. At that time Donovan stood supreme among the middle-weight fighters of the world. He had taken on and whipped every foeman who cared to face him. And, in his climb to the top he fought some of the most bitterly contested battles in ring history.

The great Irishman fought Mike Conroy a short time after the Boyne battle. Conroy had a fair reputation as a bare knuckle fighter and was regarded as a sure winner over the 20-year-old Donovan.

But Mike outclassed his rival. Conroy, seeing defeat staring him in the face, resorted to foul tactics in an effort to win.

These actions stirred Donovan to even greater effort and he repaid Conroy for fouling by giving him a most artistic beating.

A few weeks later Donovan walked into a restaurant in Chicago and there was confronted by Jimmy Conroy, a brother of Mike's, who was a heavyweight battler of considerable repute. Jimmy Conroy, seeing Mike, walked over to him and said:

"And so you're the fellow who whipped my brother, eh?"

Mike did not answer.

ATTACKED BY BROTHER.

"You think you got away with something, don't you?" sneered Jimmy. "Well, you didn't, because right now I'm going to beat you within an inch of your life just to even up for what you did to Mike."

And the big bully swung for Donovan, almost before he had a chance to make a defense. A crowd of Conroy's friends circled around the two men, each and every one urging on Jimmy Conroy to "beat the little upstart to a pulp."

They crowded in as close as possible and every time Donovan attempted to sidestep one of Conroy's rushes those plug-uglies would stick a foot in his way and try to help Conway by attempting to trip Donovan.

When Donovan backed close to them they would kick him or punch him in the back.

It was an unequal contest—one of the most unequal ever staged. Everything was against Donovan. Faced by a man fifty pounds heavier and nearly six inches taller and surrounded by toughs who were helping Conroy in every foul way possible, it didn't look as if Donovan had a chance in the world for victory.

DONOVAN WON UNEVEN BATTLE.

But Donovan won. Mike, by wonderful cleverness, avoided most of the terrific rushes of his rival, who tried to down him with intent to kick Mike into insensibility.

Fighting cooly and with splendid judgment, Mike seized every opportunity. He never swung a punch until he was sure it would hit its mark. But every punch carried the weight of Mike's lithe body behind it.

After the men had been battling for nearly 20 minutes, the tatto Mike had been beating on the stomach of the larger man began to tell.

Then Mike went after the wearying Conroy with redoubled fury and by shifting his attack from head to stomach and back to the head again he sent Conroy tottering to the floor.

The big fellow got up and Mike dropped him again. And there he lay—helpless.

$25,000 Raised for K. of C. War Fund at Huge Boxing Show on Ebbets Field

Brooklyn, Aug. 17.—Twenty thousand citizens of Manhattan and Brooklyn gathered at Ebbets Field to witness the boxing show staged for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus war fund.

In point of attendance, it was far and away the biggest of the boxing shows given in the greater city for the various war funds. The ring was pitched at he home plate. The infield was packed with people and all the stands were filled.

Young Zulu Kid and Yankee Brandt boxed four rounds. It was a good draw. Jim Coffey and Joe Bonds went on for four rounds. It was a one-sided affair with Bonds almost out at the end of the last round.

Jack Dempsey cuffed his sparring partner, Clay Turner, about for four rounds.

Other results: Willie Burke of the U. S. S. Minnesota bested Darkey Griffin; Joe Leonard of Brooklyn defeated Frankie Fay of New Haven, Ct., in two rounds; Irish Patsy Cline was too fast for Phil Bloom; Eddie Wallace held his own with Johnny Dundee; Italian Joe Gans and Silent Martin, draw; Billy Miske shaded Battling Levinsky, four rounds.

The receipts were said to foot up close to $25,000.

QUARTERMASTER'S TEAM CLASHES WITH NORWOOD

The Depot Quartermaster's nine was to meet the strong Norwood Civic Club team on the Columbus avenue playgrounds this afternoon. The carded rival batteries were Madden and Brooks and Callahan or Lovely and Fitzgerald.

MITCHELL GETS LAVISH LACING FROM OWENS

Paddy Owens, fistic pride of Cambridge, won the 118-pound championship of New England from Charley Mitchell of Braintree, in a fast and peppery ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.

The boys battled like two little gamecocks from the tap of the first bell. Owens made good work of his left hand, stabbing Mitchell constantly, and every time the latter got set to land his famous haymaker, Paddy was inside.

The ninth and tenth were especially hot rounds, both boys punching from bell to bell. Mitchell went to his knees from a series of blows to the head in the tenth, but was up in a jiffy. Referee Conley's decision in Owen's favor was well received.

The main event saved the club, as the rest of the card was not of much account. Battling Hurley of the North End won from Johnny Fay of the same district in the second round, Conley stopping the one-sided affair.

Louis Strona of Newport, although outweighed by Billy Burke of Lynn, who substituted for Frankie Ryan of New York, won all the way in their ten-round contest.

Dave Powers won from Leo O'Brien of South Boston, another substitute, in the sixth round, the latter's second throwing in the sponge to save a game boy from getting a severe beating.

NEWARK CLUB CORRALS LEWIS-LEONARD BOUT

Newark, Aug. 17.—Boxing fans in the metropolitan district have finally been awarded the fight they have demanded for the past year. It is the Benny Leonard-Ted "Kid" Lewis battle that will be staged at Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark, on the night of September 10. Bids for this struggle were opened yesterday and the Airdrome Club had the "winning price."

BOXING GOSSIP.

BENNY LEONARD, lightweight champion, and Harvey Thorpe of Kansas City meet in a six-rounder at the Olympia A. A., Philadelphia, Labor Day night. Benny stopped Thorpe in twelve rounds in their previous engagement out West.

* * *

JACK SHARKEY of New York and Kid Henry of Newark, N. J., who showed here several times last Winter, line up at the Newark ball park next Tuesday night.

* * *

HARRY CARLSON of Brockton, one of the most satisfactory performers in New England, and ex-lightweight title-holder for this section, is anxious to get going again. Nothing would suit Harry better than a quarrel with Johnny Dundee or Frankie (Young) Britt. Carlson, when right, is a mighty stiff fistic proposition.

* * *

THE BOUT between Shaver O'Brien and Dummy Burns, scheduled for tonight at Bath, Me., has been postponed until next Wednesday night. Shaver and his sparring partner leave for the Maine city tomorrow night.

* * *

Bobby Dyson, the little New Bedford southpaw takes exceptions to Paddy Owens' claim to the New England title at 118 pounds. Bobby says that he's as good a mitt slinger as Owens and to prove it, he's willing to hook up with the Cambridge battler within a few weeks.

* * *

Matt Brock, the fast Cleveland lightweight and Frankie (Young) Britt, the one best bet among New England's glovemen have agreed to make 130 pounds at 9 o'clock for their 12-round tussle next Tuesday night at the Arena. Neither boy will be handicapped at making this poundage, as both are capable of reducing to a lower weight.

As a result they furnish plenty of fast work for the members. Brock, while not engaging in many bouts during the past few months, has been up against the cream of the lightweights and heavy feathers during his career. There's no need of wasting ink in commenting on Britt. As Benny Ostheus said of Kid McPartland last Tuesday night when he introduced him to the fans: "His reputation speaks for itself."

* * *

Kid Lee of Chelsea and Johnny Best the Scotch champion, two of the best boxers in this locality are down for the semi-final of eight rounds. Best gave a fine display of the Queensbury art at the Comercial Club last week; good enough to get in as a semi-finalist at the Armory. George Brooks, a promising Lowell youth teams up with Mike Castle of Lawrence in one six-rounder, Tommy Flanagan of New Bedford and Willie Jones of the South nd doing the honors in the opening number.

In the motor-paced event Wiley, Collins, Carman and Lawrence will face the starter. While Wiley looms up as an almost sure winner, his rivals are riding in good form, according to reports from other tracks, and he may be taken into camp.

The amateur sprint title race will be at one mile. Fred Hurley of Revere, Bert Carmody, Frank Keenan, Willie Culpit, Leo Maggiolli and Young Logan are the favorites entered.

PERE MARQUETTES AND ST. AMBROSES IN ACTION

The crack Pere Marquette, K. of C., team of South Boston, and speedy St. Ambrose of Dorchester, were to meet in the first game of their three-game series on Town Field, Dorchester, this afternoon. The series is the season's big one in amateur circles and should furnish plenty of brilliant ball.

Fitzgerald or McMahon was carded to pitch for Pere Marquette, with Corrigan behind the bat. Doherty, Ford, Flaherty and Cummings held down the four infield positions, while Cavanaugh, Gorman and Reardon were down to operate in the out field.

Manager Harry Galvin of the St. Ambrose, had Weafer, Keefe and Sullivan ready for slab service and did not intend making his selection until game-time. Harvey was to don the big mitt, with B. Casey, Kelley, Harkins and Twitchell manning the infield and Lally, Desmond and Howard on duty in the meadows. Play at 3 o'clock.

THIS is the anniversary of the triumphal entry into Antwerp, in 1585, of the Duke of Parma, who, acting for the bigot King of Spain, Philip II., son of the great Charles V., forced the city to surrender after a memorable siege. His vengeance was fearful.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

FISCHER grunted scornfully.

"You don't know much about your sister, young fellow," he said. "Internal politics over here may not interest her a cent, but she's crazy about America as a country, and she's shrewd enough to see things coming that a great many of you over here aren't looking for. Anyway, she came bang up against me in a little scheme I had on the night before I left Europe, and somewhere about her she's got concealed a document which I'd gladly buy for a quarter of a million dollars."

Van Teyl drank off his second cocktail.

"Some money!" he observed. "How did she come by the prize?"

"Played up for it, just as I did," Fischer replied. "She was clever enough to make use of my scaffolding, and got up the ladder first. I'm not squealing, but I've got to have that document, whatever it costs me."

Van Teyl was silent for a moment. There was an undercurrent of something threatening in his companion's manner of which he had taken note.

"And the second thing you mentioned?" he asked. "What is that?"

Fischer, as though to give due emphasis to his statement, indulged in a brief pause. Then he leaned a little forward and spoke very slowly and very forcibly.

"I want to marry her," he declared.

Van Teyl leaned back in his chair and gazed at his vis-a-vis in blank astonishment.

"You must be a damned fool, Fischer!" he exclaimed.

"You think so?" was the unruffled reply. "I wonder why?"

"I'll tell you why, if you want to know," Van Teyl continued bluntly. "I know of four of the richest and best-looking young men in America, two ambassadors, an English peer, and an Italian prince, who have proposed to Pamela during the last two months alone. She refused every one of them."

"Well," Fischer remarked, "she must marry some time."

Van Teyl looked at him insolently.

"I shouldn't think you'd have a dog's chance," he pronounced.

There was a little glitter behind Fischer's spectacles.

"Up till now," he admitted smoothly, "I have not been fortunate. I must confess, however, that I was hoping for your good offices."

"Pamela wouldn't take the slightest notice of anything I might say," Van Teyl declared. "Besides, I should hate you to marry her."

Tried on Steamer

"A little blunt, are you not, my young friend?" Fischer remarked amiably. "Still, to continue, there is also the matter of that document. I must confess that I exercised all my ingenuity to obtain possession of it on the steamer."

"You would!" Van Teyl muttered.

"Your sister, however," Fischer continued, "was also wise enough to have it locked up in the purser's safe the moment she set foot upon the steamer. She got me the night she got it back, and eluded me, somehow, on the quay. She will scarcely have had time to part with it yet, though. When she arrives here tonight, it will in all probability be in her possession."

"Well?" Van Teyl demanded. "You don't suggest that I should rob her of it, I suppose?"

"Not at all," Fischer replied. "On the other hand, you might very well induce her to give it up voluntarily, or at least to treat with me."

"You don't know Pamela," was Van Teyl's curt reply.

"I know her sufficiently," Fischer went on, hanging over the table, "to believe that she would sacrifice a great deal to save her brother from Sing Sing."

Van Teyl took the thrust badly. He started as though he had been stabbed, and his face became almost ghastly in its pallor. He tossed off a glass of wine hastily.

"Just what do you mean by that?" he asked thickly.

"Are you prepared," Fischer continued, "to have me visit your office tomorrow morning and examine my accounts and securities in the presence of your partners?"

"Why not?" Van Teyl faltered. "What in hell do you mean?"

Looked Piteous

"I mean, James Van Teyl," his companion declared, "that I should find you a matter of a hundred thousand dollars short. I mean that you've realized on some of my securities, gambled on your own account with the proceeds, and lost. You did this as regards one stock at least, with a forged transfer, which I hold."

Van Teyl looked almost piteously around. Life seemed suddenly to have become an unreal thing—the crowds of well-dressed diners, the gentle splashing of the water from the fountains in the winter garden, the distant murmuring of music from behind the canopy of palms. So this was the end of it! All that week he had hoped against hope. He had been told of a sure thing. Next week he had meant to have a great gamble. Everything was to have gone his way, after all. And now it was too late. Fischer knew, and Fischer was a cruel tyrant. . . .

The unnatural silence came to an end. Only Fischer's voice seemed to come from a long way off.

"Drink your wine, James Van Teyl," he advised, "and listen to me. You've been under obligations to me from the start. I meant you to be. I brought a great business to your firm, and I insisted upon having you interested. I had a motive, as I have for most things I do. You are well placed socially in New York, and I am not. It suited me to take this suite in the Plaza, nominally in our joint names, but to pay the whole account myself. It suited me because I required the shelter of your social position. You understand?"

"I always understand," Van Teyl muttered.

"Just so. Only, whereas you simply thought me a snob, I had in reality a different and very definite purpose. We come how, however, to your present obligation to me. I can, if I choose, tear up your forged transfer, submit to the loss of my money, and leave you secure. I shall do so if you are able to induce your sister to hand over to me those few lines of writing—to which, believe me, she has no earthly right—and to accept me as a prospective suitor."

Van Teyl was drinking steadily now, but every mouthful of food seemed almost to choke him. Red-eyed and defiant, he faced his torturer.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Making Good

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few weeks ago I met a girl I love very much. She confessed her love through a letter which she sent me. Everything was all right until I told my past, which is not a good one, but a year ago I changed and have held down a good position. I am well liked by my employers (who know my case).

The young lady says I may see her once a week and become engaged when I make good. This will take a long time, as I am going to college when I can.

IRVING.

MY dear boy, if you want to give years to study and education and spend your time thinking a wife would be a pretty serious handicap? Four years at college—perhaps two years of preparation; have you a right to ask a girl to wait so long. Now that you have torn yourself away from the former life and have felt the stirrings of ambition, wouldn't it be better if you devoted yourself to work for awhile? You know you want to justify your employer, the good friend who is helping you to live above your past, don't be foolish about the girl. Surely you would not want to cut her off from all her friends and acquaintance and have her sit waiting for you for years. Think how you have changed in the last year. You are going to continue growing and developing—do you want to risk marriage in your present state. Don't you think you are likely to grow away from this girl? No friends wish her, but don't try to bind her by any promises and don't be selfish enough to take her away from other friendships.

A Secret Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have made the great mistake of secretly marrying after an acquaintance of only two weeks.

I have had a good long talk with my husband regarding our future, but he is determined about our living apart and things remaining as they are.

Shall I speak to his folks or my folks about it? I do not need his support do you mean?

DARLING.

I DARE say there is no use scolding you now that you have done this very foolish thing of making a secret marriage. I don't quite see your husband's point of view in insisting on keeping the affair secret, particularly as it is against your better judgment.

I believe I'd take some member of my family into my confidence, preferably your mother.

Amos Chapin Insists on Having His Say Without Fuss

By Virginia Terhune Van De Water

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued

TEARS rushed to her eyes, and her voice broke.

Elizabeth stepped quickly to her side.

"There, there!" she murmured, "I am sorry I said what I did in your presence. I know it was hard for you to let your boy go, and we won't talk any more about anything concerning him."

"Yes, we will, too!" Amos Chapin declared. "Mother, you'd best go on upstairs or outside if you can't let me say my say without fussing."

"All right, pa," the mother conquered her emotion by a mighty effort. "I won't say another word. I know as well as you do that Clifford does sometimes speak without thinking. But he really don't mean any harm."

"I didn't say he did mean harm," her husband retorted. "But mischief is sometimes done when it's not meant. Now," turning to Elizabeth as she stood at the foot of the stairs, "just what was it that he said to you?"

Amos Is Apologetic

"Really," the girl tried to speak carelessly, "I cannot recall his exact words. I paid too little attention to them, I suppose. I did not worry about them, for, as I reminded him, this is my brother's farm, and I feel that he has a right to have me stay here under any name or guise he chooses to give me. Were I to pose as one of the royal family"—with a little laugh—"that would be his affair and mine, and"—laughing more heartily and naturally—"the affair of the royal personage whom I elected to personate. "I know," sobering suddenly, "that Douglas has an excellent reason for what he is doing this Summer. So I simply carry out his directions. I trust him perfectly. I have taken it for granted that others would do the same."

"Of course, of course they do," Chapin hastened to reassure her. "I suppose Cliff's mother"—and she paused because I hadn't explained to him the truth about things. But it was none of his business.

"That's what I thought," Elizabeth said. "And I am sure that my brother would agree with you and me on that point."

Step Forward

Amos took a step forward, his face working nervously. "Why bother your brother about a silly boy's speech?" he argued. "Just let it pass. You know," appealingly, "that I've done my best to carry out your brother's wishes this Summer—now haven't I? even about having this new-fangled farmer chap here—though I didn't see any real need of it."

"The improvements that have resulted prove that there was a need of it," Elizabeth observed.

"Yes, yes, I see that." Amos admitted truculently. "And as all's well, why say anything about that little slip of Cliff's? Everything's going right here, so right, indeed," he added hopefully, "that I don't think there's the least need of your brother coming on to look the farm over this Fall."

Powerful and Appealing

"Till You Come Back" is one of the loveliest of the series of beautiful paintings by Howard Chandler Christy, reproduced in full color as the cover of the Magazine Section of the Sunday paper. Powerful, patriotic and appealing, it has been given to the United States War Department by this newspaper, to be used as a poster to help the work of recruiting or in any other way the War Department may think desirable. ALL over this land they're thick as flowers in a storm-swept field, girls of the same good heart-stuff that their gran'mothers were, the girls with soldier-lovers, husbands and brothers.

The same girl who showed a smiling, gay little face, with no tears on it, a steady voice, and chin up, so he might have no woe, but only laughter and happiness to remember "overseas"—sometimes, now he is gone, hides despairing, anxious face and hands on the rough cloth of her service flag and knows fear and grief and terror—and defiant pride and exultation—making her tears bitter-sweet.

"Chin-up and no tears 'til you're gone. Happier if you die than I could be if you had stayed at home! Cry if I like—OUT LOUD—when you cannot see. But never let YOU know that I've a crack across my heart and am afraid." That's young feminine America's creed by daylight and night-time these heroic days.

RECIPES FOR WARTIME

Here are some recipes worth trying, in which carrots are the main ingredient:

CURRIED CARROTS.

Required—One pound of carrots, boiled, one onion, boiled, an apple, three-quarters of an ounce of flour, three-quarters of an ounce of curry powder, half a pint of stock or water, salt, four ounces of boiled rice. Mince the onion and fry it a pale brown color, sprinkle over the curry powder and flour, stir, then moisten with the stock and the apple finely chopped, and a pinch of salt. Allow this sauce to simmer for twenty minutes, then add the carrots cut up into even-sized pieces or dice. Reheat for ten or fifteen minutes. Serve on a hot dish with a border of boiled rice.

CARROT SALAD.

Required — Four carrots, boiled, one lettuce or watercress, one cooked potato, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper, chopped parsley, half a gill of milk. Slice the carrots, put them in a salad bowl with the lettuce or watercress, washed and picked, and arranged round the carrots. Sieve the potato, mix it with some vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Add a little milk to thin the mixture, pour it over the carrots, and decorate with chopped parsley.

SAVORY CARROT PUDDING.

Required—Half a pound of carrots (grated), one pound of cooked and sieved potato, half a pound of sausage-meat, salt, pepper to taste, and a grate of nutmeg, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one small onion, peeled and finely chopped, one egg, dried, milk if necessary, one teaspoonful of Marmite, a quarter of a teaspoonful of savory nuts. Put the carrots, potato, onion and sausage-meat into a basin and mix thoroughly. Add to this the parsley, seasoning, Marmite and the egg beaten up. Mix all the ingredients well together, adding a little more milk or stock if the mixture is found to be too dry. Put this mixture into a greased pudding basin or mould, cover, and steam for two hours. Turn out onto a hot dish, and serve with some brown sauce or nicely seasoned gravy.

Why We Need Exercise

AND THE BENEFITS DERIVED FROM IT

By Brice Belden, M. D.

ABOUT half the body is muscle. Man's great muscular endowment is undoubtedly a heritage from that dim past when he had to depend upon his strength, agility and speed for his existence. Then he had to "work or starve, fight or be killed, run or be eaten." He had to possess powerful muscles or go under, and in the course of this tremendous struggle only the fittest survived, and from them a virile race descended.

It is in the muscles that food and oxygen are converted into heat and power. The carbon we breathe and bodily warmth unless the muscles demand food and oxygen, and the demand wafts upon starches. Human energy in all its expressions is thus seen to depend upon muscle activity.

Not only do the muscles act as transformers, in which food and oxygen are converted into heat and power and reserve vitality, but in them are burned up the poisons that would otherwise soon overcome human beings. In case of invasion of infectious germs the muscle furnaces burn fiercely and evolve so much heat that what we call fever is produced. We are no longer afraid of fever, for we know now that it signifies nature's way of destroying the toxins of invading germs.

In order to meet such invasions and poisonings successfully we must keep the reserve bins of our muscle furnaces well stocked with fuel in the form of food and oxygen, and this means exercise.

This burning up process is known technically as oxidation. Our general health, resistance to infection, sense of strength and well-being, and the development of reserve power, depend one and all upon muscle use.

Man was made for work; he was created to be active. Only in productive or creative action does he find happiness and health. His muscles are under the command of his will, and so we have the working combination of force of will, self-confidence and achievement through labor.

Exercise means an interaction of will and muscle and achievement. Consequently your man of initiative is pretty sure to be a man of strong muscles, an example of all-round development, because satisfaction has been found in the conscious fulfilment of purpose and in the sense of completeness gained through accomplishment.

But nowadays we are devising, with marvellous ingenuity, countless mechanisms which take the place of man's muscles and tend to make him indolent. Our civilization is constantly lessening the necessity for muscle use and putting a premium upon physical idleness.

So come about the chronic fatigues and so-called neurasthenias, for when man does not exercise he becomes exhausted, strange to say. The tired business man is one who, while a slave of industry, does not work in a wholesome way.

Better the work of war than the sloth of our sickly city lives.

"Fight or be killed," ran the old injunction. Well, it is fight or be killed today.

War, for all its mortality, takes us back to life—strange paradox. And the work of universal military service appears now in the light of a physical necessity.

Overdone.

Augustus was Jocelyn's "very best young man," and she was doing all she could to encourage him. "Did you know," he said, "that I passed your house last evening?" "Of course I did!" she answered. "Did you think I wouldn't know your step?" And the young man grew thoughtful and grave, for he had passed in a taxicab.

Most Unusual

Two business men were discussing their partner during his absence from office.

"A funny chap, Rattlepate," said one.

"How's that?" asked the other.

"Well, can you believe it, he din't meet the prettiest girl in the world during his holidays."

AN EXAMPLE OF SELFISHNESS

A Wife With Four Children Owes Something to Them and Less to Money-Saving Relatives

By Beatrice Fairfax

WHY is it that everyone else's problems seem easier of solution than our own? Is it that we get a better perspective on them, or because we know none of the people involved and our judgment is not warped by affection, prejudice or other emotions?

Before me is a letter from a woman who has evidently done her best in regard to an impossible domestic situation. She and her husband are growing apart, her most unselfish efforts are disregarded, and while her husband is making excellent wages, she is unable to save a cent or buy the necessary clothes for herself or her children.

My correspondent says: "I have been married nine years and have four children. The oldest is eight, the youngest a baby of five months. My husband's father and two younger brothers—both under draft age—have been living with us since they landed in this country, nearly two years ago.

Best of Wages

"All of them have excellent 'jobs' and are making the best of wages. When they first came they stopped with us as guests for three months; then as they were all working, the three paid me thirty-five dollars a month for room, board and washing. You can readily see, at the present cost of provisions, that I fell behind trying to 'room and board' three men at a little under twelve dollars a month a piece.

"Still my husband's people complained that they were paying too much, and the trouble was that I was a bad manager. They suggested that I buy food of a wholesale quality and get it at wholesale rates. So to keep peace, I changed our way of living and bought everything wholesale, but this did not please them any better than the first way. And they thought up another scheme:

"They are now paying me $45 for the three meals a day and two rooms and I am going back, back, back all the time. My husband makes good wages, but I am unable to save anything at all or get any clothes for myself or my children. And my husband has begun to side with them against me that I am a poor manager, though he never thought so before they came.

Good Bank Accounts

In the meantime, they—my husband's father and brothers—have all got good bank accounts and add to them regularly every week, besides sending money to the family, still in the old country. I am so tired of doing all the work, bookkeeping, catering, and trying to keep, what once was a happy home, going, that I hope you will, at least, give me a little sympathy.

"A CONSTANT READER."

You certainly have my sympathy. Any one up against a puzzle of this sort has my sympathy, alby of five months. My husband's father and two younger brothers—both under draft age—have been living with us since they landed in this country, nearly two years ago.

Father Not Dependent

If the father were old and dependent on you, I shouldn't have a word to say, as sons and daughters ought never to let old fathers and mothers suffer. There comes a time when their own children have to consider such questions, and they have a way of remembering, these young people, the treatment that was handed out to their grandparents, and either consciously or unconsciously, it affects their attitude to their parents when their time comes to deal with them.

But this case is different. The "in-laws" are prosperous; they all have good jobs, are getting fabulous war wages, they are all flourishing under the system, while the hard-working mother of four children is falling back in her accounts.

Besides, she and her husband are not so happy as they might be in the house to themselves. The friction of a divided family is telling both on the husband and wife. It is unfair to themselves and more unfair to their children. They ought to have a "straight talk" and then tactfully suggest to the prosperous relatives that they seek another home.

I have not given all of my correspondent's letter, but it seems that her husband's wages—thirty-five a week—which was formerly ample for all the family needs, now go chiefly for provisions and nothing is being put aside.

People with four children owe them something, and in these days of high wages, they should consider the lean years that are apt to follow such tremendous increases by the pay envelope and put by something for a rainy day. The easiest way to save is to buy a Liberty Bond and pay something on it regularly till it is yours—a golden egg of the future.

And when you begin to collect "eggs" conscientiously and systematically, it is not long before you have a basket full. The troubled little mother who has written to me had better put her gifts into golden egg collecting as represented by Thrift Stamps and Liberty Bonds, and let her "in-laws" transplant their food problems elsewhere. And doubtless she and her husband will again enjoy the happiness they have lost in their hectic endeavors to make both ends meet.

Frocks for the City Girl

By Rita Stuyvesant

FOR workers who must spend their Summer days in town there are smart sport dresses practical for business wear, as well as for a set of tennis in the park on a holiday. Cool and dark, and yet lacking none of the requisites of good-looking clothes, these dresses are seen mostly in dark blue linen or crash.

A practical little dress of this kind was recently made in dark blue "crash." It was a sleeveless coat model with a black patent leather belt and a crisp organdie blouse. It was very simple and easy to copy.

The skirt was a plain two-piece model fastening on the left side. It was cut rather scant and measured about a yard and a half around the bottom. Made not over two yards, it would still be quite fashionable.

The jacket, which is kept on indoors, reached half-way down to the hips and did not boast of any sleeves. The neck, fronts and armholes were neatly bound with a bias strip of material. Deep patch pockets were set on the lower part of the front. The patent leather belt gave a smart finish to the suit.

Under the jacket a crisp blouse of white organdie was worn, the collar coming over the jacket, and the front showing. Any white blouses on hand might be worn, however, and this provides a clever way to use blouses that are a bit too old to wear separately.

With a tailored hat (a sailor is good) this makes a cool and practical costume for town wear, and is ideal for the business girl.

White crepe de chine, satin or tub silk blouses are all appropriate to wear under the sleeveless blouse. Rich wine color ratine or basket weave would also be smart for this model.

TO WIN WAR BIG DUTY, SAYS GASTON

Candidate for Governor Gives Pledge to Support Administration in Opening Speech

Colonel William A. Gaston, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, made his first speech of the campaign before a large gathering of Democrats in Boston at a dinner held in the State Mutual building.

Colonel Gaston said in part:

"This campaign will be conducted by no petty issues of the day. The only one all-important duty before us all is the winning of the war, to which everything else must be subordinated. The question, Who Shall be Governor of Massachusetts this year?—ought to be decided by the voters of this State in favor of the man who can do the most to effect that end.

"President Wilson says that party politics have adjourned, and so far as it is possible they have adjourned, but we are still living under the party system, and we must have nominees by the two principal parties.

"Our party is supporting President, and the other is indulging in all kinds of criticism of him to the limit that they dare. President Wilson should have the support of every loyal voter, and he has mine in every way.

"The great present job of the Democratic party is to help and not to win this war, and not to build foundation for libel or slander suits, or publicity campaigns for any body else's glory lines. We are Democrats, but we are patriots first, and any language that tends to weaken or render ineffective the pofer of any man to save our country is treason, and help them when they come back to us wounded or unemployed, is something that I feel confident the people will utterly condemn.

"My platform is and will be unstinting and unceasing effort to win the war."

LIEUTENANT SIDNEY A. COOK

LIEUTENANT SIDNEY A. COOK, former Boston American reporter, who has just returned from France to become an instructor at Camp Dix, N. J.

YANKEES EAGER FOR BAYONET FIGHTING

"The success of the American troops lies largely in their eagerness for hand-to-hand fighting. Long-range fighting, which is the specialty of the Boche, doesn't appeal to them. The Americans like the real fighting."

This, in short, sums up the opinion of Lieutenant Sidney A. Cook of the 103rd Regiment, a former Boston AMERICAN reporter, just returned from France.

Lieutenant Cook, who wears two gold service stripes, signifying a year of foreign service, has been ordered to Camp Dix, N. J., as an instructor. He saw seven years' service in the National Guard and went to the Mexican border. He attended the first Plattsburg training camp and was commissioned.

After two days at Camp Devens he was assigned to the headquarters company of the 103rd Infantry. He spent eight months in France as regimental pioneer officer, and then was made battalion gas officer under Major James Hannon of Belgrade, Me. The regiment has been in the line since last February, and some of the boys are getting pretty well "fed up" with fighting and would like a rest," he said. "We trained for forty-two days with a French regiment which has since been entirely wiped out by the Boche.

"We relieved the 104th in front of Apremont. Later we relieved the 102nd in Xivray. For our fighting here the regiment was cited. So that both regiments of General Cole's brigade have been cited, and decorated.

"After four days rest we relieved the marines in the Bois de Belleau and went over the top capturing the towns of Torcy and Belleau. We took Torcy in twelve minutes and Belleau in 10 minutes, advancing 1000 yards.

"At Xivray we faced 2,000 picked Boche troops, 1,200 of them German shock troops, and the rest representing every branch of the Boche service. We took fifteen prisoners, including a German first lieutenant. Each of these represented a different branch of the service.

"The boys are all fit and feeling fine. They are always eager to get near action, and advance. French life with its long periods of waiting doesn't appeal to them so keenly, but they take things as they come uncomplainingly."

LONG QUESTIONS GASTON ABOUT ELEVATED

Richard H. Long, in the course of his speech at a rally in Rockland, directed one following question to Colonel William A. Gaston:

"I would like to ask Mr. Gaston what official position he held with the Boston Elevated in 1899, and whether or not the Legislature of Massachusetts was so manipulated by the Elevated at that time that these manipulations by the Elevated suited in the defeat of Hon. Patrick A. Collins for mayor of Boston?"

Mr. Long continued:

"This is not the time, when the maintenance of Democracy is the predominant issue in the world, for any candidate for public office to run his campaign from behind a directors' table.

"The voters are entitled to know the facts.

"What answer will Mr. Gaston make? He now has the opportunity. If the answer is not made within a reasonable time, I shall state the facts in the case. I shall also have other questions to ask when the answer to this one is made.

"In accordance with Democratic custom, I shall continue to hold rallies throughout the State, taking my case directly to the voters. I shall state directly to them the issues on which I stand and which I shall strive to have enacted into law. They include the initiative and Referendum, forty-eight-hour law for women and children, public control of public utilities, regulation of monopolies and development of the resources of the State which is necessary, that we may have a place ready for every soldier upon his return.

"I conceive it to be the duty of all candidates for public office to state to the public their attitude on the progressive issues of the day."

CHARGE VOTES BOUGHT IN CHICAGO CITY COUNCIL

Chicago, Aug. 16—State's Attorney Hoyne today instituted a grand jury investigation into charges that thousands of dollars were used to obtain the passage of the traction and subway ordinance by the City Council. Ten of the 31 seventy aldermen who voted against the ordinance have been summoned to appear today, and the other ten for Monday. Three public officials and several aldermen are declared by the State's attorney to have acted as go-between between the traction interests and the Aldermen. He declares the amounts paid average between $3,000 and $5,000, but that some Aldermen were offered as high as $5,500. Mr. Hoyne said: "I have the names of several persons, including public officials who are said to have acted as lobbyists and who paid or promised to pay aldermen for their votes."

12TH DIVISION AT DEVENS IN HIGH SPIRITS

Told It Will Be Sent Over as Soon as Component Parts Are in Shape

Camp Devens, Ayer, Aug. 17.—The spirits of the officers and men were high today when they started their day's training, as a result of the announcement of Colonel Oliver H. Dockery, Jr., chief of staff of the 12th division that they would be sent to the firing line as soon as component parts of the division could be moulded into shape.

All started today to work with a determination to show their commanders that they were anxious to get over and take their places in the line and were willing to work hard to complete the training in the shortest possible time that would be consistent with carefulness and efficiency.

The twelfth division will be a model of American soldiers and will represent one of the finest units ever sent to General Pershing, as only men in the best physical condition will be placed in it.

Already work has started of combing the depot brigade for men fit for foreign service, and they are being rapidly transferred into the regiments, and the best trained of the regiments are being organized for the machine gun battalions.

TEN HOURS OF WORK.

A daily working schedule of ten hours has been arranged, and the men are willing to have the schedule extended if it will improve their chances of getting into action sooner.

When the new commanding general, yet to be appointed, arrives to take charge of the division, the men will probably be farther advanced than that of any cantonment in the country.

The 73d and 74th Regiments are being trained in advanced military tactics and the 74th has had formal guard mount which would do justice to veterans, according to army officers of several years training.

The band for the 74th has also been completed and will play for the first time in public at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Monday night, when Lieutenant Vittorio Orlandini will address a gathering of the camp.

Saving food to win the war is also a slogan of the 74th and three men who were detected eating bread in A Company were compelled to walk around the squad room for two hours with signs on their backs reading: "I wasted bread. Some hungry kid over on the other side would have been glad to get it. I grab more than I can eat."

PARADE OF FOOD VIOLATORS.

The violators of the rule forbidding the wasting of food were paraded before their company mates and officers instructed the other members of the company that more serious treatment would be dealt to the next men reported.

First Lieutenant C. W. Trendell of Brattleboro, Vt., has been placed in charge of the provost guard in place of Captain Harold Fuller.

Lieutenant Paul Gerard, of the French army, who fought in the trenches for three years without receiving a wound, is wearing a bandage on his head for injuries received by being thrown from an automobile. While returning to camp in an automobile in which he was riding was overturned and all the occupants were injured and narrowly escaped death.

Philippos D. Demos, who claims he is illegally in the army because he is a Greek citizen, has filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, which is returnable August 20.

A MAMMOTH SING.

Every company of the 74th Regiment was collected in an open air amphitheatre for a mammoth sing. Each company sang a song from the sheets arranged by Instructor Jack Archer. The sing was a preliminary to a contest petition to be arranged later. Private William Connors of Danbury, Conn., acted as organist.

Lieutenant Stanislaus A. Gutowski, a Boston University Law student, until he joined the army, has been detailed from Washington to organize certain foreigners in the development battalion and all Polish, Italian, Armenian-Syrian and Greek-Albanian will be organized into companies and commanded by commissioned and non-commissioned officers of their home country.

Congressman Augustine L. Lonergan, who is visiting the training camps of the country, was in camp with U. S. Marshal Mitchell and a party, and declared the site to be one of the best in the country.

William R. Bailey of Florida, who spent several months on the firing line with the 17th Engineers and was sent to a hospital in this country after being gassed, has been discharged from the battalion and sent to the development battalion. He is anxious to return to the line. He wears a uniform with a gold service stripe on his sleeve.

FULL-BLOODED INDIAN.

William Richardson, a full-blooded Indian traveling with a circus, was brought to camp with a delegation from New Haven and assigned to the 58th company. He was dressed in his uniform of the show, wearing a bandanna handkerchief, campaign hat and Western chaps.

The Liberty Theatre broke all camp theatre records at the opening performance of "A Bit o' Broadway" when they received $875.75 from 2,626 patrons.

AUTO DEALERS URGED TO WORK ON WAR BASIS

Washington, Aug. 17.—The recent warning of the war industries board to the automobile manufacturers to get on a 100 per cent war work basis by the first of the year, if they expect to continue in business, brought a committee of twenty-five retail automobile dealers to Washington to discover just how the situation was to affect their business.

After the conference the War Industries board made the following announcement:

"While no order has been issued by the War Industries Board controlling motor car production and no definite order of curtailment could be given until the automobile manufacturers had submitted inventories of prevent stocks, the board has suggested to manufacturers of automobiles that they undertake to get war work, even up to 100 per cent, if possible, by January 1, 1919.

"Automobile manufacturers have already accepted war orders aggregating between $500,000,000 and $3,000,000,000.

"The War Industries Board realizes the importance of a continuation of all possible industrial activity so far as it can be brought about without interference with the war program. All automobile dealers, however, should put themselves as rapidly as possible on a war basis, in order to be ready for whatever curtailment may become necessary.

"The War Industries Board has not classed the automobile or any other industry as non-essential, and in determining the question of the position of any and every industry it will be guided solely by the war requirements and needs, distinguished from the wants of the civilian population.

"In view of the fact that the requirements of steel and rubber exceed the supply and make automobile production necessary, the war service committee of the National Automobile Dealers' Association has agreed to recommend ways and means to stop the unnecessary use of passenger cars and increase their utilitarian uses."

The automobile dealers in the delegation here included F. W. A. Vesper of St. Louis, president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association; Thomas J. Hay, Chicago; O. B. Kimball, Boston; Charles W. Brown, New York city; C. A. Forster, Cleveland; Fred H. Caley, Cleveland; George R. Huron, New York city; William L. Coit, New York city; H. B. Harper, Philadelphia; A. E. Maltby, Philadelphia; J. T. Madden, Charlotte, N. C.; John W. Lee, Jr., Syracuse, and B. A. Hatfield, St. Louis.

NAVAL VESSELS PATROL N. E. FISHING BANKS

Washington, Aug. 17.—Patrol of the fishing banks off New England, where the German submarines have been preying on small craft, has been established by the Navy Department, Secretary Daniels announced.

The delegation of naval vessels to this work, it was said, was not alone to protect the fishing fleet, but to maintain an important food supply, and the action was decided on after a conference of the naval authorities with the officials of the United States food administration.

Army Officials Find 'Cootie' Underwear Unsatisfactory

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 17.—Iowa women who have been busy preparing "cootie proof" underwear for use by the boys in the trenches have been told by army officials that the anti-vermin clothes have proved unsatisfactory and ordered to cease further shipments.

The underwear was sewed by the women and then dipped in a cootie killing liquid at the State University

WILSON VIEWS RADIO SCHOOL FROM AUTO

Nation's Chief Executive Sees White-Uniformed Army and Passes by Unnoticed

By S. HARRY FERRIS

U. S. Naval Radio School at Cambridge, Aug. 17.—During his visit to Boston President Wilson viewed the Radio School from his machine. Nos. 1 an officer or enlisted man recognized the chief executive as his machine moved slowly by and as he looked over the boys of Captain Nat Ayer's white-uniformed army.

Inspection at the school took place today. Captain Ayer, commanding officer of the school, with his staff, visited the different buildings and gave everything pertaining to them a critical overlook.

A new feature was planned for today in the form of a general review on Soldier's Field.

The Boston War Camp Community Service, 951 Little Building also, arranged another unique feature for the Radio School.

It was a visit of ten of the foremost magazine and feature writers of the Harvard Glee Club was a famous institution, E. W. Nattager of the "Y" Hut is arranging to have the Radio School provided with a similar organization.

A large number of applications have been received for membership in the club, which will have its first meeting for a trout of the voices and the prospective members at the Hut Monday night.

It is also proposed to form an orchestra, composed of the sailors, and from present indications it will be a very creditable organization.
